By Chester H. Rowell

EVIDENTLY the movies are too stupid and the speaking stage too incoherent. At any rate, Irene Fenwick, commends her husband, Lionel Barrymore, for preferring the movies, because the "legitimate" stage, is "distasteful, and panders to the most vulgar tastes of the public." And others have objected to the movies, because while they were decent enough, it required no brains to act in them. Such of the stars as have brains, they said, have had to go into producing, to exercise them.

THE difference perhaps is that the movie is made for Main street, while the speaking play is made for Broadway. Main street may be stupid and conventional, but most of it is decent and the rest is required by custom to pretend to be so. Broadway, on the other hand, is expressed by Irving S. Cobb's testimony that the Earl Carroll dinner, prior to the bathtub incident, was proper enough by Broadway standards. Doubtless even New York theater-goers are most of them decent enough. They flocked for three years to "Abie's Irish Rose." But the one thing they are most afraid of is appearing unsophisticated. So some of them have to pretend not to be shocked at the decency, just as some of Main street pretend to be shocked at it.

THE movies are democratic; so they have to be decent. The experiments in indecency they tried for a while made them more trouble than profit. But do they have to be stupid? Doubtless not. Neither do newspapers. The deliberate stupidity often cultivated by both with the idea of appealing to the multitude, is an offense to that multitude, and its implication is not true. The people are not so stupid that they have to be treated stupidly. But there is another stupidity, inherent in both movies and newspapers, of which the people should be charitable. The stupidity which is a playing down to the assumed stupidity of readers is an offense. But that which is a reflection of the actual stupidity of authors and editors is at least genuine, and entitled to commiseration. A newspaper has to come out every day. Whoever writes every day is bound to write stupidly part of the time. He is lucky if he does not do it all the time. Movies have to be turned out by the thousands. There are not enough great brains available to make all the scenarios of such an output intelligent, even if that were the demand.

"THE job is not worth while; no job is," said a discouraged worker in a good cause, who actually was doing his job magnificently. "What is the use of anything?" The answer is, of course, that nobody knows, and it is none of our business. Nobody knows whether life is worth living. Quite likely it isn't. But it is our job to live it, nevertheless. You see an ant struggling to pull a heavy crumb to the anthill. You know that the job is not worth doing. But the ant mustn't know it. Set yourself in imagination on Olympus and look down at your own job. It is about the same size as the ant's, and about equally important. But, on that job, you must not measure it by yourself. You must measure it by the job. You are not very big yourself, and the job is doubtless quite as big as you are. The privilege, granted to us along among living creatures, of setting ourselves outside of ourselves, and seeing from Olympus how small we are, should not be misused to encourage us. Rather, it should give us the stimulus of faith toward something still higher, to which we can not attain, but from which, if we could reach it, the whole proportion would adjust itself. Meantime, it is enough for us to look on life, not as a puzzle to be solved, but as a job to be done. Do your job hard enough, and you won't even ask whether it is worth doing.

SECRETARY HOOVER'S Department of Congress has just valued the United States again. It is worth $35 billion dollars. We have gained some 72 per cent in dollars, in ten years, but, since the dollars are worth less, the actual increase in value is about 16 per cent, which is barely more than the increase in persons to share it. On this $35 billion of wealth, we earn seventy billions of income. Since as productive capital, the wealth would bring only about twenty billions, the other fifty billions must be the value of the people. Capitalized at 6 per cent, this would be $83 billion that the people are worth. Actually, since much of the physical property is not productive capital, the capitalized value of the American people considered merely as producers of wealth, is at least a trillion dollars. Since these valuations have to be adjusted to the decreased value of

National Defense Cannot Be Neglected, Says Chief In Address at Arlington

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 31.—Standing on the marble rostrum of the Arlington amphitheater, dedicated to the veterans of all American wars, President Coolidge today issued a ringing denunciation of militarism, intolerance and race hatred and appealed to the people of this nation to maintain peace by disarmament and arbitration.

In spite of treaties and tribunals, we cannot escape war unless an opinion "devoted to peace" is reached by the American people, the president declared in his Memorial day address, given in the realm of America's honored dead.

"A determination to do right will be more effective than all our treaties and courts, all our armies and fleets," he said.

Peace for Peaceful People

"A peaceful people will have peace, but a warlike people cannot escape war."

Mr. Coolidge expressed himself most satisfied with the condition of our standing army and navy.

"Our country has never had a better equipped army or a more efficient navy in time of peace than it has at the present time," he continued. "The air service is being perfected, better quarters are being provided and our whole military establishment is being made worthy of the power and dignity of this great nation."

"We realize that national security and national defense cannot be safely neglected. To do so is to put in peril our domestic tranquility and jeopardize our respect and standing among the other nations."

But our forces are distinctly the forces of peace, the president declared.

No Territory Sought

"Everyone knows that we covet no territory, we entertain no imperialistic designs; we harbor no enmity toward any other people," he said. "We seek no revenge, we nurse no grievances, we fear no enemies. Our ways are the ways of peace."

Our decision to enter the World court is an indication of our desire for international harmony, Mr. Coolidge said in a lengthy eulogy of the principles of that tribunal.

"When questions arise which all parties agree ought to be adjudicated, but which do not yield to the ordinary methods of diplomacy," he continued, "there is a forum to which the parties may voluntarily repair in the consciousness that their cause will be determined impartially, according to the law and the evidence. That is a sensible, direct, efficient and practical method of adjusting difficulties which cannot fail to appeal to the intelligence of the American people."

Pledge for Arms Parley

The preliminary conference on the reduction of armament at Geneva is another important instrument for peace which should be given the whole-hearted support of the American people, the president believes.

"Out of that conference, we expect some practical results," he observed, adding a sort of warning note to Europe in these words: "We believe that other nations ought to join with us in laying aside their suspicions and hatreds sufficient to produce peace."

Highlights of Address By President

A peaceful people will have peace, but a warlike people cannot escape war.

We seek no revenge, we nurse no grievances, we have inflicted no injuries and we fear no enemies. Our ways are the ways of peace.

Perhaps no country on earth has greater responsibility than America.

A determination to do right will be more effective than all our treaties and courts, all our armies and fleets.

Our country has never had a better equipped army or a more efficient navy in time of peace than it has at the present time.

Our national treasury is not in the banking business.

Balloons ARE IN RACE FOR BENNETT CUP

(By United Press)

ANTWERP, May 31.—Aloft above Europe, driving before a southerly westerly wind, the great spheres of balloons, entered in the Gordon Bennett Cup race, are speeding on in the international air derby.

Six balloons have thus far descended. The British balloon Villager landed last night at the village of Gossel, near Deventer, Holland, after covering 155 kilometers. The Swiss balloon Helveta landed at Ede, in the province of Gueldre, Holland, after covering 130 kilometers, and the British balloon Bee landed at Waalwijk, near Bois Le Duc, Holland, after covering 75 kilometers.

The Italian craft, Aerostiers III, landed at Zundert, Holland, this morning, owing to an accident in which its envelope was torn. The pilots were not injured. The French balloon Picardie landed at Kulenberg, in Holland, and the Spanish balloon Captain Penaranda landed at Appledorn, Holland.

Two French balloons, piloted by Blanchet and Cormier, were broken at the take-off and collapsed almost immediately as the balloons got under way, between 4:30 and 6:43 yesterday.

NO CONFIRMATION OF MAXSON'S FALL

BRUSSELS, May 31.—No official confirmation has been received here of early reports that H. W. Maxson, assistant pilot of the American balloon Akron, in the Gordon Bennett Cup race, was thrown to the ground when it alighted near Antwerp.

According to this report, J. A. Boettner was still piloting the balloon.

40 Foreigners In Shanghai Stoned

SHANGHAI, May 31.—Forty foreigners were stoned and beaten by Chinese mobs Sunday night, following anniversary demonstrations over the shooting of Chinese students by British soldiers a year ago. Fifteen hundred civilian volunteer troops patrolled the city following disorders, as it was feared that the riot, which subsided after the attacks, might be resumed.

TRIBUTE PAID TO AMERICAN SOLDIER DEAD

Memorial Exercises Held In Santa Ana and Other Towns in Orange County

FLOWERS ON GRAVES

Final Resting-Places of War Veterans Are Decorated With Many Floral Pieces

SANTA ANA and Orange county today joined with the nation in paying reverence and respect to the memory of the American soldier and sailor dead.

In almost every hamlet, town and city, some program had been planned to do honor to the dead heroes.

Early in the morning, the movement to the cemeteries began. Little children, bearing flowers, accompanied gray-haired veterans to the graves of veterans of the Civil war. Graves of all veterans in the cemeteries adjacent to Santa Ana were made beautiful with garlands today.

The ceremony at the monument to the unknown dead, in Santa Ana cemetery, took place at 10 o'clock this morning.

The Santa Ana observance of Memorial day centered at Birch Park, where a large crowd gathered shortly after noon to take part in the ceremonies. The principal address was to be delivered by the Rev. W. E. Roberts, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Santa Ana.

The invocation was to be delivered by H. E. Smith, chaplain of Sedgwick post, No. 17, Grand Army of the Republic.

M. J. Leiser, quartermaster of the post, was to read the names of the comrades who died since last Memorial day.

Mrs. E. A. Bell was to read the address delivered by Lincoln at the battlefield of Gettysburg.

Patriotic numbers were to be sung by the Y.M.C.A. chorus.

SOUTHLAND PAYS TRIBUTE TO HEROES.

LOS ANGELES, May 31.—The entire Southland paid tribute to America's soldier dead in various Memorial day features.

Schools and business places were closed in memory of the dead war heroes, while public services were conducted in all cities.

The battle fleet held special ceremonies in honor of the navy's dead. A mammoth parade culminated the memorial services in Los Angeles.

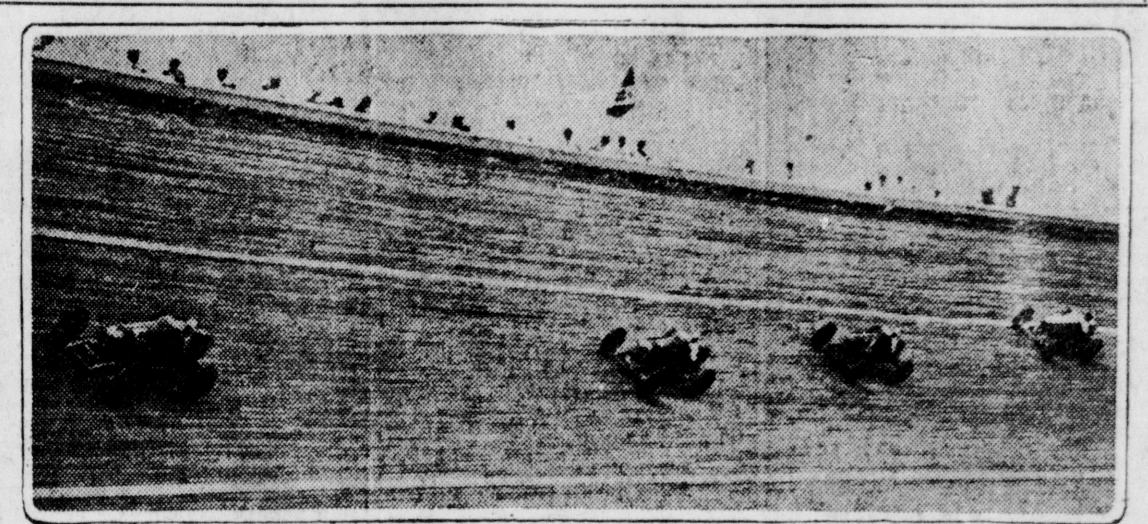

Do You Know An Editor?

The National Editorial Association is to hold its annual convention in California this year, and the opening program will begin at El Centro where breakfast will be served to the visitors, most of whom are expected to travel by the Rock Island-Southern Pacific route.

Next will come a trip through the wonderful Carrizo gorge and on to San Diego. After a day spent in and about San Diego the visitors will come to Orange county, where preparations are in progress to give them a chance to see much of this most productive and beautiful county. They will be our guests all day, June 29. After doing Orange county the party will proceed to Los Angeles, from which place trips will be made to other Southern California points of interest. Eleven days will be spent in thus "viewing the landscape o'er," and it is believed that in that time the newspaper people will fully realize that Southern California has much besides her truly wonderful climate to commend this region to the home-seeker.

It has been suggested that our Orange county people should write to the editors of their acquaintance, extending an invitation to them to join the party. Certainly all or any who accept such an invitation will be given royal entertainment and a hearty welcome. So, if you know an editor man who has not planned to make this trip write to him. In case of a lady newspaper worker, don't stop at writing, telegraph.

OPEN GATES OF BIG EXPOSITION IN QUAKER CITY

(By United Press)

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—Ushered in by guns of the army and navy booming the national salute, the Sesqui-Centennial exposition, commemorating the 150th year of American independence, formally opened today.

Secretary of State Kellogg bore a message of welcome from President Coolidge to the 38 foreign nations formally participating in the celebration, military, naval and diplomatic representatives of which were present today at the opening ceremony.

America is steering a steady course of progress by the original chart of the fathers of the republic, despite efforts of a minority to put this government on the dangerous rocks of radicalism, Secretary Kellogg said, in his opening address.

Referring to the reaction of the present post-war period, Kellogg declared:

"For some, the pendulum swung back, life was flat and had lost its savor and in that dullness and disillusion, agitators arose and are still active, who question those institutions and that civilization which is ours and which had been accepted previously without question. Demands were made for changes in the fundamental law of our government which would sweep away the guarantees of personal liberty, security of property and stability of government. Even through these days, however, the great mass of our people have held fast to their faith."

UNCOVER BODY OF ACCIDENT VICTIM

SAN JOSE, May 31.—County authorities here believe they have uncovered evidence of one of the most callous hit and run accidents on record.

The body of Andrew Pashute, 28, was uncovered in a crude grave four miles from San Jose.

Investigators believe the young man was killed by an automobilist, who, after the fatal accident, quickly buried his victim and fled into the night.

The body was found by Mrs. M. G. Singleton, a ranch woman.

Interruption Due to Weather Occurs to Mar Indianapolis Speed Event

(By United Press)

MOTOR SPEEDWAY, Indianapolis, Ind., May 31.—Eighteen drivers out of 28 left the tape in resuming the 500-mile automobile race here today, after a suspension of more than an hour because of rain. The cars were lined up as at the original start. The timing device was turned back to permit an even start and each driver was credited with the relative position in which the rain stopped him.

Lockhart, in a Miller Special, was in the lead as the race was resumed at the 175-mile stage. Hartz, in a Miller Special, was second and Cooper was third in a front-drive Miller Special.

Ten cars were eliminated by different causes. There had been no serious accidents.

Clouds Gather Again

Gathering clouds climbed ominously over the track again as the motorists resumed their race, threatening a second fall of rain. Just before the race was stopped, Ben Jones, in a Duesenberg Special, crashed, but was uninjured. Axle trouble forced him against a brick retaining wall.

Earl Cooper, Harry Hartz, and Leon Duray, the latter in a Locomobile Junior, were in the front of the starters.

At 125 miles, Dave Lewis held tenaciously to first place and was closely pressed by Frank Lockhart, youthful sensation from the far west. Harry Hartz, in third place, was more than a lap behind Lewis. Frank Elliott and Fred Comer held fourth and fifth places and were two laps behind.

Fred Leckleider's Nickel Plate Special went out on its 24th lap with mechanical trouble. He was 25 miles behind the leaders.

Herschel McKee, Special in the wheel of an Eldridge, Special in place of E. A. Eldridge.

Leon Duray Goes Out

Leon Duray, after holding well up in the early stages of the race, broke a gas line feed on his 34th lap. He was taken to the Speedway hospital for treatment of minor burns.

Jack McCarver's Hamilton Special was out on its 31st lap.

Leon Duray went out for 15 minutes with a broken gas connection. He went back in the race far behind the leaders.

Menesch's Schmidt Special and Ellingboe's Miller Special went out with mechanical trouble. McDonough's Miller Special also was out.

Frank Lockhart went into the lead on the 39th lap when Dave Lewis stopped at the pits for the first time.

Standing at end 150 miles:

Frank Lockhart, Miller Special, first.

Harry Hartz, Miller Special, second.

Dave Lewis, Miller Special, third.

Earl Cooper, Miller Special, fourth.

Frank Elliott, Miller Special, fifth.

Time, 1:31:39.

Average, 129.20.

Last year's average, 104.29.

The positions of the pilots starting in the races, their entries and qualifying time in miles per hour for the 10-mile elimination runs follow:

The Quick, Easy Way To Make Better Jams and Jellies

By Elizabeth Palmer

If you want your jams and jellies this year to give you a real thrill of pride, make them by the new short-bolt method with Certo. You've no idea how easy it is and what an improvement it makes in color and flavor. "My strawberry jam tastes enough like fresh berries to use in strawberry shortcake," says one delighted woman who uses Certo. Certo is a pure fruit product—the jelling substance of fruit refined and bottled. When you use Certo you do not have to "boil your fruit down." One or two minutes' boiling is all it needs. It cannot fail to sell. This short boiling time with Certo preserves the natural flavor and color of your fresh fruit, and gives you more jam or jelly, because you save the juice which used to boil away. A recipe book comes with each bottle of Certo. Your grocer carries Certo, or you can send 10c (for postage) and get a trial half-size bottle which will make from 5 to 10 glasses of jam or jelly, depending upon the recipe used. 16 INJURED IN AUTO MISHAPS OVER WEEK END

Five automobile accidents, with a total of 16 persons injured, have been reported to the sheriff's office, as part of the toll exacted on the roads of Orange county over the weekend, which saw the heaviest traffic of the year.

That there were at least five other accidents and other persons hurt, reports on which have not been made, was declared by traffic officers and members of the sheriff's office, who, since noon Saturday have been unusually busy, handling thousands of automobiles, headed north and south, to the mountains and to the beaches.

Officers are making elaborate plans for handling traffic tonight, when thousands of machines are expected to start their homeward trips, after spending a weekend and an extra day at places of amusement.

Nine women and girls were injured at 2:15 o'clock yesterday at San Juan Capistrano, when two cars collided. According to a report made at the jail by C. A. Cutbirth, 10837 Hawthorne avenue, Los Angeles, a car driven by Sister Belarde, Tuslin, containing seven other girls, collided with the machine which he was driving, while he was in line of traffic, headed south on the state highway.

The impact of the collision overturned the machine driven by the Belarde girl, injuring all of the car's occupants. None of them was seriously injured. They were: Marie Becara, Grace Aliveras, Myrtle Combs, a Mrs. Wilson, Marge Senedler, Grace Combs, Laura Combs and Sister Belarde. The Combs girls are daughters of Jack Combs, deputy sheriff.

Mrs. Erma Wiseman, a passenger in the Cutbirth machine, received severe cuts and bruises about the head and body. She was brought to the sheriff's office, and later returned to her home in Los Angeles.

R. Truman Dawes, Pacific Mutual building, Los Angeles, collided with a machine driven by Moulton Uehls, 200 North Palm avenue, Alhambra, at 1:15 a. m. yesterday at Costa Mesa, according to a report filed at the sheriff's office by Dawes.

According to the report, the Uehls machine first collided with a small car going in the same direction as was Dawes. The Uehls machine then crashed head on into Dawes' machine, wrecking it. Dawes was cut and bruised, not seriously, and two girls in the Uehls machine were said to be injured. They were taken home.

Mrs. Alec Cameron, 424 West Florence avenue, Los Angeles, was severely cut and bruised in an automobile accident at 2 a. m. yesterday, when a machine, driven by her husband, collided with a car driven by P. D. Kelsey, 1226 North Prairie avenue, Inglewood, according to a report made to authorities. The accident occurred on the state highway, south of Irvine station.

According to Kelsey's report, the two cars collided almost head-on, while going in opposite directions. He gave as the reason for the crash that both machines were running near the center of the road.

No one was injured when cars driven by James P. Hall, 1107 West Eighth street and H. C. Wahlberg Jr., collided Saturday afternoon at 5:25 o'clock at Eighth and Broadway, according to a report.

Persons treated at the Santa Ana Valley hospital yesterday for injuries received in automobile accidents, reports on which have not been made were: L. A. Morse, 303 Spurgeon street, Santa Ana, cuts and bruises and Ivy Marshall, 1223 Second street, Santa Monica. Morse is still in the hospital.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGED TO WOMAN

"Boss, I know my automobile won't run no 70 miles an hour," was the only remark that Edward Green, 31, negro woman, made when she was brought into the county jail last night on a reckless driving charge, from Fullerton.

The woman was arrested there by Officer Cleaver. She lives at 685 Eighth street, Los Angeles, she told officers.

Although a woman, the Green woman insisted her first name was Edward.

A date palm, near San Diego, was planted by the missionary, Junipero Serra, in 1776.

the dollar, it is interesting to measure them by a still greater decrease. At its lowest, the German mark depreciated to a trillionth—a thousand billionths—of one. On that basis, the entire value of the United States—all its property, all its business, all its money—could be bought at its face value in German marks for just nine cents, while twenty-five cents more, put out at interest, would hire the entire population of the United States, forever!

Yet, on that infinitesimal valuation, Germany actually did business. It was the miracle of the decimal system and the Arabic notation. All you had to do was to disregard the last twelve ciphers, and these "astronomical" sums were as easy to deal with as any other. The writer, at that time, bought a German newspaper, and gave the vendor one good mark. He received 800,000,000 paper marks in change, 200,000,000 of which he paid for one street car fare.

KIWANIS CLUB DELEGATES OFF TO CONVENTION

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Winbiger and Arthur Lyon departed yesterday for Montreal, Canada, where the men will represent the Santa Ana Kiwanis club as delegates to the tenth annual convention of Kiwanis International opening on June 7, and continuing through June 10.

The Santa Ana delegates are traveling on a special train carrying other Kiwanians and friends in California to the great convention. It is expected there will be 6000 delegates, many of whom will be accompanied by members of their families. Fifty special trains, starting from many points in the United States and Canada, are expected to arrive in the convention city by the opening date.

Canadian history, depicting the times of the Indian and the French-Canadian settlements of many years ago will be offered in pageant. The French society, St. Jean Baptiste, the Caledonian society, the Snowshoers' union, the Hull Kiwanis club, and the 50 Kiwanis bands from all over the North American continent will aid the Montreal Kiwanis club in accomplishing the historical pageantry to the two local members and the other 6000 Kiwanian delegates.

On the opening night of the convention the usual "All Kiwanis Night" program will be held. Some 10,000 Kiwanians and visitors will attend this occasion in the Canadian city's immense auditorium known as the "Forum." During this occasion a 15-minute period will be given over to an expression of international good will and friendship. Simultaneously with this period all the Kiwanis clubs located in cities in Canada and the United States will meet for a united observance of the century long friendship between the two countries. Many of the clubs will be directly in touch with the convention by radio, for the program will be broadcast over the United States and Canada.

Following the convention the Santa Anas will visit in some of the principal cities in the United States, returning home in six weeks.

Schaffer, secretary, and others, tomorrow.

Two weeks will have elapsed tomorrow since the revivalist was reported drowned while swimming in the surf at Ocean Park. Not a trace of her body has been found, despite a continuous search, unprecedented in its thoroughness.

Airplanes were used again today in an effort to sight the body floating far out at sea. All hope of finding it near the shore has vanished.

Only comparative handfuls of Angelus temple worshippers were at the beach today. The majority of them appear to have become discouraged over the long and futile vigil. They are expected to desert the beach entirely within the next 24 hours.

Memorial services were broadcast over the Angelus temple radio Sunday, while an airplane circled over the surf where Mrs. McPherson disappeared, strewn hundreds of red and white roses on her supposed watery grave.

DETECTIVES CONTINUE SEARCH AT WINTERS

SANTA ANA, May 31.—Unrewarded by anything more than rumors, detectives today continued their search in the vicinity of Winters, for Aimee Semple McPherson, missing evangelist of Angelus temple.

A rumor that Mrs. McPherson's son, Rolf, and Mr. and Mrs. James Pleasants, with whom he lives, had mysteriously absented themselves from their Winters ranch, yesterday, was reported to have been confirmed by detectives. On their return, they refused to discuss their absence, it was reported.

Mrs. Pleasants, however, was reported to have intimated her belief that Mrs. McPherson may be living, in the following quoted statement: "If Aimee McPherson wants to come to my home and stay, she is perfectly welcome. I would take her in and tell no one."

MEMORIAL DAY CREATED 1868 BY JOHN LOGAN

Memorial day was created May 5, 1868, by an order issued from his headquarters in Washington D. C., by Commander-in-chief John A. Logan. Following is the general order:

"The 30th day of May, 1868, is designated for the purpose of strewing flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village and hamlet churchyard in the land. In this observance no form of ceremony is prescribed, but posts and comrades will in their own way arrange such fitting services and testimonials of respect as circumstances may permit. We are organized, comrades, as our regulations tell us, for the purpose among other things, 'of preserving and strengthening those kind and fraternal feelings which have bound together the late rebellion.'"

"What can add more to assure this result than by cherishing tenderly the memory of our heroic dead, who made their breasts a barricade between our country and its foes. Their soldier lives were the revivification of freedom to a race in chains, and their deaths the tattoo of rebellious tyranny in arms. We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance. All that the nation can add to their adornment and security is but a fitting tribute to the memory of her slain defenders. Let no wanton foot tread rudely on such hallowed grounds. Let pleasant paths invite the coming and going of reverent visitors and fond mourners. Let no vandalism or avarice or neglect, ravages of time testify to the present or to the coming generations that we have forgotten as a people the cost of a free and undivided republic."

"If other eyes grow dull and other hands slack, and other hearts cold in the solemn trust, ours shall keep it well as long as the light and warmth of life remain to us. Let us, then, at the time appointed, gather around the sacred remains and garlands of the fallen, and let us, with choicest flowers of springtime; let us raise above them the dear old flag they saved from dishonor; let us in this solemn presence renew our pledges to aid and assist those whom they have left among us, a sacred charge upon a nation's gratitude—the soldier's and sailor's widow and orphan."

"It is the purpose of the commander-in-chief to inaugurate this observance with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of his departed comrades. He earnestly desires the public press to call attention to this order, and send its friendly aid in bringing it to the notice of comrades in all parts of the country in time for the simultaneous compliance therewith."

2 DIE IN EFFORT TO RESCUE GIRL

MODESTO, Calif., May 31.—

Three persons in Modesto today are dead from drowning, two of them sacrificing their lives in futile efforts to save a girl.

Evelyn Canning, aged 12, while playing near an irrigation ditch about six feet deep, slipped and fell in. Louise Corgiat, 16, attempted to rescue her, and fell in. C. E. Butcher, Modesto plumber, heard the girls' cries for help and he dived in fully dressed. Butcher's shoes and clothes became waterlogged and all three perished.

Although the bodies were recovered a few minutes afterward, none of the victims of the triple tragedy could be revived, even though a pulmotor was used. Butcher is survived by his widow and several children.

He was freed on bail of $50 for his appearance before Judge J. V. Murphy, at the beach city tomorrow, after remaining in jail here some time Saturday. Deputy Sheriff Smith and Mozley made the arrest. The companion was not held.

FIVE BELIEVED DEAD IN BROOKLYN FIRE

NEW YORK, May 31.—An early morning fire today is believed to have burned to death Mrs. Thomas Hughes and three of her seven children. A fifth person also is missing.

No trace of any of the five has been found, although there is still believed to be possibility that Mrs. Caroline Smith, the fifth, had been removed and taken away by friends.

The fire started in the East New York Oval and Athletic field, in the Canarsie district of Brooklyn, and spread to two frame houses adjoining, which were destroyed.

MILITARISM HIT BY PRESIDENT

Recently to agree among themselves upon methods of mutual relief from the necessity of the maintenance of great land and sea forces. This cannot be done if we constantly have in mind the resort to war for the redress of wrongs and the enforcement of rights.

Troubles in Europe "We should not underestimate the difficulties of European nations, nor fail to extend to them the highest degree of patience and the most sympathetic consideration. But we cannot fail to assert our conviction that they are in great need of further limitation of armaments and our determination to lend them every assistance in the solution of their problem."

The president completed his address with an expression of satisfaction over the present prosperity of the nation and the promised prosperity of the future.

SHERIFF SEEKING HIT, RUN DRIVER

A search throughout Southern California was launched yesterday by Sheriff Sam Jernigan for the driver of an automobile which, at 7:15 p. m., Saturday, ran down a small boy, Jack Beattie, on the state highway, south of Capistrano Beach, severely injuring him.

A newspaper reporter for the Los Angeles Examiner, T. S. Sutton, 901 West Fifty-eighth street, Los Angeles, together with George A. Potter, Los Angeles banker, gave chase to the machine but were unable to overtake it. They secured the number of the car and a good description, however, giving the information to Sheriff Jernigan.

Beattie's left leg was broken in two places, near the hip and below the knee, and he was badly cut and bruised. No effort on the part of the driver to stop and render aid following the accident, was seen by those in the near vicinity at the time.

The boy was taken to his home.

A huge volcanic crater in the middle of a glacier was found recently in Iceland.

MANY TRAGIC DEATHS OCCUR OVER WEEK END

SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—Death lurked beneath the shimmer of the surf and river and claimed six lives by drowning over the week end, according to reports from Pacific coast states to the United Press today.

The automobile, commonly in the lead, took only three lives. Deaths from all unnatural causes mounted to 17.

Most tragic in the entire list was the drowning of two girls and one man near Fresno. One girl drowned in an attempt to save the other, and the man drowned in a heroic attempt to save both.

In Oakland, a man and a woman were dead, presumably as the result of a suicide pact, though police were investigating the possibility of double murder.

A 3-year-old baby, in La Grange, Calif., died after drinking a glassful of kerosene.

Evidence that motorists as a whole were extraordinarily careful, or fortune, was also seen in the list of known injured, which rose to only 35.

The death toll by states:

California—Mrs. Lilla Hewitt, 24, and Albert E. Gertz, 33, dead from gun wounds; believed suicide pact. San Francisco—Albert Walters, 62, suicide, by jumping from window.

Vallejo—Peter Christensen, 26, San Francisco, fracture skull by falling.

La Grange—Dorothy Rose, 3, drank glassful of kerosene.

Monte Rio—Miss Theo Baker, 18, drowned, swimming in Russian river.

Sacramento—Daniel Sullivan, 35, suffered fractured skull in street brawl.

Modesto—Evelyn Cunningham, 12; Louise Corgiat, 16, and C. F. Butcher, drowned.

Los Angeles—Earl Nelson, 14, Inglewood, drowned at Manhattan Beach.

Oregon—Roseburg—Dan Craig, 47, Leon Lake, killed by accidental discharge of gun while hunting.

The Dalles—Harold Venable, Wasco, killed in auto crash.

Washington—Seattle—William Gordon, 60, burned to death in home.

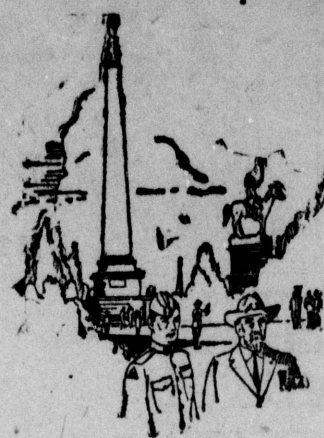

Tacoma—Lauren House, 21, killed in auto accident.

Auburn—Ira W. Hayes, crushed beneath overturned auto.

Marysville—Thomas Hall, drowned when he fell from launch.

DORA McWATERS IS HONORED AT CAMP

Miss Dora McWaters again reigns as the prettiest and "best all-around sport" among the co-eds at the Santa Ana junior college.

The students of the campus "Y" on the retreat to Camp Lewis during the past week-end, reaffirmed their choice by electing her with slight contest to the honor.
Last December during the Asilomar conference, the "Y" students delegated themselves a beauty critics board and elected Miss McWaters the prettiest girl in the college. An outcome of it was the naming of Henrik Van Rensselaer, past "Y" president, the most collegiate man in college.
The first five on the list made out at Camp Lewis were Misses
McWaters, Dorothy Pease, Myrtle Ketchum, Marjorie Callis and Marie Carothers. Henry Powell received complimentary votes.
Points considered in the election of Miss McWaters included beauty, personality and popularity.
Ten students at the retreat cast votes. A fair representation of the college was expressed. Most of the ballots, cast secretly, gave Miss McWaters the first place making her selection decisive.

AUTOIST IS FIRED ON BY MOTOR COP

Armand Trujillo, 26, 1030 North Logan street, Santa Ana, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Pat Hurd, state traffic officer, on the state highway, near Culver's corner. He is in the county jail, where he faces a charge of driving an automobile, while intoxicated.

The man, with a companion, made a break for freedom when the officer threw up aside the machine which Trujillo was driving. Hurd shot once at the fleeing men before Trujillo stopped. The other man made good his escape.

Trujillo was released from the county jail here last summer on parole. He served time then for driving an automobile while drunk.
Jail records show. He was paroled in order that he might attend a funeral of a son, who had died suddenly.

SANTA ANA HOTELS HOSTS TO HUNDREDS OF TOURISTS AS TRAVEL RECORD BROKEN

Santa Ana hotel, restaurant and garage men, tired out from yesterday's record-breaking volume of travel business, were up early this morning to prepare for another avalanche of pleasure seeking multitudes.

Never before in the history of the city of Santa Ana has so large a volume of motor travel been recorded. All records were shattered.
It was the opinion of hotel and restaurant men as well as traffic experts that more persons went through Orange county, and particularly Santa Ana, Saturday and Sunday than ever before in any two-day period.

Boulevards were crowded to capacity, and it was claimed that more than 100,000 automobiles passed over the roads to San Diego, Laguna Beach, Capistrano Beach,
Balboa and other resorts.

A magnet to the pleasure seekers of the Southland, San Diego was the goal of most pleasure seekers. The march on the southern city began early Saturday afternoon. Before dark of that day, the main highway running through Fullerton, Anaheim and Santa Ana to Capistrano presented a veritable caravan of southbound machines.
A considerable volume of the traffic went by way of Orange, and another portion was diverted at East Seventeenth street via Tustin boulevard.

Rivalling this year with San Diego in popularity with motorists were Laguna Beach and Capistrano Beach, which attracted thousands of people who sought these beaches as a haven from the heat-swept cities of the inland country.

The cars making up the motor procession ranged from expensive limousines to dilapidated flivvers.
Light trucks and delivery wagons had been requisitioned to furnish transportation for those who could not obtain anything better.

Orange county, and particularly Santa Ana, is accustomed to handling holiday crowds bound for San Diego and near lying beaches. On former occasions, especially when the holidays came together, its boulevards and thoroughfares have been crowded with motorists. Realizing this, plans were laid by local hotel men, restaurant keepers, operators of garages and service stations, to accommodate the holiday travelers. But this time they came even more thickly than estimated.

The city's leading hotels began filling up Saturday night, tired motorists who found the traffic little too much for their nerves. St.
Ann's Inn, Hotel Santa Ana, Hotel Rossmore and the Finley hotel were filled to capacity.

Garages were packed with visiting cars and many had to be parked for the night in the streets or nearby alleys.

Restaurants did a remarkable business. Most of them had laid in a big supply of foodstuffs in anticipation of the rush, but even at that, rush calls had to be sent to dairies and other dealers for additional supply. Eating places along Main street kept open all Saturday night and last night, feeding an endless stream of people. Extra help was employed at these places and cooks were sent from Los Angeles and Long Beach to tide over the rush.

A new magnet to the pleasure seekers of the Southland, Laguna Beach yesterday entertained probably the greatest week-end crowds in its history, according to advices received here this morning.

It is estimated that fully 10,000 flocked to this popular bathing resort and artist colony from Los Angeles, Pasadena, Riverside, Glendale, Hollywood and other points, for the holiday period.

TWO NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH IN RIPTIDES

Two persons narrowly escaped death by drowning at Orange county beaches, yesterday, it was revealed today, following a check of the various coast communities.
Jerry Jordan, son of Mrs. L. V.
Jordan, of 1725 North Main street, Santa Ana, was seized with cramps while bathing with his brother, Carl, and Ernest Hill, also of Santa Ana, at Laguna Beach and was taken from the water in an unconscious condition.

Unable to bring the distressed man in, Jordan and Hill called for help. Their calls were not taken seriously, however, by onlookers and it was fully five minutes before help arrived. When the seriousness of the situation was realized, fully 100 persons swam into the water to aid the men.

Jordan was taken to one of the Johnston cabins and medical assistance rendered. Because of the large amount of water swallowed, he is in a very weak condition, it is said.

Charles Vollwest, of Los Angeles, owes his life to the efforts of L. J. DeLapp, also of Los Angeles, and A. W. Jaskson, fire chief of Newport.

Vollwest got into a rip tide off
Sixteenth street, Newport Beach, early yesterday morning and was going down for the last time when DeLapp swam to his side.
Jaskson was called and worked over the unconscious man with the pulmotor for some time before he could revive him.

According to reports from the beach, all crowd records were broken yesterday. The entire Orange county beach line from Seal
Beach to a point below San Juan Capistrano was lined with visitors.
The boat races on Newport bay served to attract many, the bay shore being lined with people watching the fast traveling boats.

Thieves Break In Service Station

Sneak thieves stole $50 in cash from the cash register of the Le-Roy Baldwin service station at Buena Park, Saturday afternoon, according to a report filed with the sheriff's office.
Officers Smith and Elliott of the sheriff's office, investigated, but found no clues, they reported.

The till of the service station was robbed while employees were busy attending to wants of customers.

Police News

Charged with being drunk, A.
Cortez, 21, Delhi, was arrested last night by Deputy Sheriff Jack Combs. The man was arrested in Delhi and is in the county jail.

F. Rosales, 21, charged with being a "Peeping Tom," was arrested at Delhi last night by H. W. Mc-Kague, deputy sheriff.

DEATH THEORY IN JAMES CASE IS ABANDONED

The theory that Mrs. Howard
T. James, who left three suicide notes at Balboa Friday, carried out her death threat, appeared to be exploded today, following discovery that most of her clothes had disappeared from her Los Angeles residence.

The husband, a Los Angeles city fireman, has expressed the belief from the first that his wife did not commit suicide, pointing out that she had feigned suicide twice before in an effort to frighten him.

That Mrs. James' first husband, said to live in Arizona, may have had a hand in the mysterious disappearance of the woman and the James' 11-month-old baby was a theory advanced today. The description of the man seen by George Eberle, cafeteria employe, at the rear of the Balboa hotel the evening Mrs. James dropped from sight, is said to fit the first husband. According to Eberle, the man, who had the appearance of a Spaniard, held a baby in his arms and rushed to an automobile
when she saw Eberle.

Due to the fact that Mrs. James had been in a despondent state of mind for several weeks, officers at first were inclined to believe that she had jumped off Balboa pier with her baby.

SICK HEADACHE

No Pleasure, Says Ohio Lady, to Go Places Till She Took Black-Brought Which Brought Relief.

Langsville, Ohio.—"For years and years I suffered with severe headaches," says Mrs. Jane Campbell, of this place. "It wasn't any pleasure for me to go places, for I came home with sick headache. I went to church or to any social gathering or to town to shop, when I got back I would have these headaches and have to go to bed for a day or more, till I would just get out of heart and would not try to go."

"About 15 years ago I discovered that Black-Brought was good for these headaches. I began using it. I would take it for two or three nights in succession if I felt the least bad, and it sure did wonders for me. It is about 14 years since I had sick headaches, and I can go places and really enjoy life. It surely is splendid."

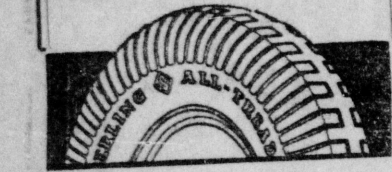

Headache often is a symptom of constipation. The best relief is secured by treating the cause of the trouble and in such a case many people have been greatly helped by the use of Black-Brought.

HERE'S STORY OF FAMOUS OLD PETTICOAT FLAG, SAVED BY GIRL DURING CIVIL WAR

Here is Gen. J. Warren Keifer, former speaker of the house, who presented the famous "petticoat flag" of his regiment to the state of Ohio. And the famous flag itself that was kept from the enemy by serving as a young girl's petticoat is shown as it may be seen today in the state museum.

BRENNING NOT WORRIED ABOUT TRIAL TUESDAY

The trial of Daniel Brenning, charged with perjury, is scheduled to be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in Superior Judge Z. B. West's court.

But unless the situation is changed within the next few hours, there will be no trial of Daniel Brenning here tomorrow.

Which is by way of saying that Daniel Brenning has escaped from the custody of his jailors, and is not expected to put in an appearance when his case is called by Judge West.

Brenning was arrested a few weeks ago on a complaint charging that, when he secured a marriage license to wed Elizabeth Simpkins, aged 15, he represented her age to be 19. He was required to take an oath regarding her age at the license bureau.

When the asserted facts were made known to the district attorney's office, the perjury charge was instituted against Brenning, who was promptly taken from the bosom of his family, which included the youthful bride and Brenning's two small children by a former marriage, and was incarcerated at the county jail.

Subsequently, he was healed through the preliminary hearing and into the superior court, where he pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for June 2.

Brenning was not satisfied with this arrangement. So one day he borrowed a safety razor, ostensibly for a shave, and retired to his cell. Instead of shaving his beard, however, Brenning started his own, few veins and arteries on his wrists. He was discovered before the suicide was perfected, and was hurried to the county hospital for attendance.

Later he was taken to the offices of Dr. J. M. Bulew at Eighth and Broadway, for further treatment of his wounds.

At the physician's office, Brenning complained of feeling badly, and was shown into a small room where he was allowed to lie down upon a couch. Deputy Jailor Joe Irvine waited for him in another room. In due time, Irvine poked his head into the room for a look at his prisoner. He took one look. Then he took another. And another. But still he failed to see his prisoner.

The couch was vacant. Irvine took one reproachful glance at the open window beside it, and turned disconsolately back toward the jail, alone.

JUNIOR C. OF C. TO DISCUSS HARBOR

The $1,200,000 bond issue proposal for the improvement of Orange county harbor at Newport Beach will be thoroughly discussed by three minute speakers tonight at a special meeting of the junior division of the Santa Ana chamber of commerce to be held at Ketter's cafe, beginning at 6:30 o'clock, at which time dinner will be served.

Two very attractive girls from the Yost theater vaudeville bill will be on hand to provide entertainment, according to E. M. Fox, chairman of the entertainment committee.

The speakers will take part in the contest sponsored by Lew H. Wallace of Newport Beach and will speak on the subject, "How Development of Newport Harbor will Benefit Orange County." Three prizes, including a fine trophy cup, have been offered the winners.

COUPLE CHARGED WITH DRUNKENNESS

A man and a woman, found intoxicated in a machine near the intersection of South Main street and the Newport road, were arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Jim Smith. The woman, Jimmy Malott, 23, a dancer of 1302 1-2 West Twentieth street, Los Angeles, is charged with being drunk, and her companion, Lars Torgensland, 31, 2200 Lemon street, Los Angeles, is in jail facing a charge of reckless driving and drunkenness.

Faded and Stained with Powder, Banner Is in Ohio Museum

COLUMBUS, O., May 31.—A faded, powder-stained old flag of Civil war days, worn for long weeks as a petticoat by a little Quakeress staunchly loyal to the Union, rests in a place of honor in the Ohio State Archeological and Historical Museum, at Columbus.

If this old flag, with its 34 stars still shining out from its faded field of blue, could speak, it could tell one of the most colorful and romantic of the many tales taken forth from the tissue wrappings of memory and shown on Memorial day.

And not many miles from the old flag, and near enough to visit it often, lives a white-haired old man to vouch for the flag's story, and hold his feeble shoulders a bit higher as he remembers his part in that story.

He is Gen. J. Warren Keifer, 90 years old, former speaker of the house of representatives.

His law shingle still hangs out in Springfield and 'tis said that "smart law youngsters" fear the competition of the general.

But friends of the general like "the petticoat story" best of all those that cluster about his snow-white head.

'Twas in June, 1863, when cannons gouged out the green slopes of the Shenandoah valley, General Keifer, then straight and strong of limb, commanded the Union Fort Milroy, near Winchester, Va.

The fiery southerners were raining shots too fast and furiously and President Lincoln ordered Keifer to break camp.

Reluctantly the general gave way to the enemy, but to deceive them longer he left his unit's flag waving proudly and brightly from the camp's highest point.

Next forenoon the Confederates stormed the hill only to find an empty camp. But the flag of the enemy was theirs.

Jeff Davis was collecting captured Yankee flags for a celebration of southern successes, and the boys in gray packed the Union flag in a box to ship to "Jeff" in Richmond, Va.

But they did not think of the loyal and brave hearts of two Union-loving girls in the neighborhood, Mary Joy and Anna Jackson, unsketches.

Mary Joy, a girl living in the home of a Joseph Jackson near the fort, had married a young Union soldier, Edward Kipp, but a short time ago. He had left her for his regiment, and she feared he might be among the prisoners brought by the Confederacy to Fort Milroy.

She was right. Going secretly to the fort in the dead of night she found her husband. He and another prisoner prowling about the fort had found the boxed-up flag and stolen it from the box.

They bound it about Mary Joy as a petticoat and begged her to take it to Anna Jackson, a girl in the household where she lived, who was known as a Union sympathizer.

Anna Jackson was chatting with some Confederate soldier admirers when Mary Joy returned with the famous flag petticoat. Calling her from the room, the flag was given her.

Search House For Flag
Then began days of rapid moving for the famous flag. The fort had missed it. The Jacksons were suspected, and searching squad after searching squad came to the house while the flag moved from ash barrels to under beds and mattresses, down cellar, in granaries and smoke houses.

The years went on. The war was over. The blue and the gray slept in grassy hillsides together. Anna Jackson was married now. Her name was Mrs. Jonah L. Rees.

Exactly 60 years from the date of the historic flag's capture, she sent it to General Keifer, saying that it was really his own regiment's flag.

The general presented the "petticoat flag" to the state of Ohio, where it rests in Columbus, as one of the most colorful mementoes of the war.

Anna Jackson, the Quaker maid of the long ago, died only a few months ago, aged 88, still treasuring her part in saving the Union flag.

In jail today, the woman is said to have remarked that she remembered nothing of the arrest and did not understand how she got to jail.

Both will be given a hearing before Justice Kenneth Morrison tomorrow morning.

OLIGER URGES COUNTY VOTERS APPROVE BONDS

Orange county will vote herself into progress, if voters of the county on June 10 approve the issue of bonds in the sum of $1,200,000 for further work on the harbor, in the opinion of A. L. Oliger, former secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce and now associated with the Long Beach Chamber.

"Men build cities, not natural resources," Oliger said today in pointing to some of the many natural advantages possessed by this county. "As to how rapidly the development takes place will depend largely on the action of voters at the coming election," he continued.

"Orange county is blessed with a number of fundamentals that are bound to make your immediate section an important factor in the development of a wonderful empire on the Pacific coast," the former secretary said. "With ideal climate, rich agricultural advantages, possibilities for industrial expansion, oil, ocean on one side and mountains on the other, connected with all other sections with modern railroad facilities, and the finest highway system in America, all backed with the famous California spirit—one can readily see why your future expansion is bound to be rapid."

If you will add to your other assets the fact that you have a modern harbor to connect your district with the rest of the world by water, it can easily be seen that your future is unlimited. "There may be a few people who are not 'sold' on this development, but it is a fact that nowadays the fellow who says 'it can't be done' is interrupted by 'someone doing it,' so it is up to the progressive element of your community to exercise leadership."

"Just a few years ago a number of people in this section made the statement that Long Beach and Los Angeles would never have a modern harbor. At that time the present site was a mud-flat and many people stated that it would always remain so. But the progressive spirit of California prevailed and the development started, and today that same mud-flat is one of the finest harbors in the United States, and when present plans are consummated and completed, it will be second to none in the whole world."

"At the present time the Long Beach-Los Angeles harbor is holding its own with all other ports and during the month of April of this year it reached the highest mark ever recorded since the shipping boom of 1923. Cargoes weighing 2,011,380 tons, valued at $77,683,897, were handled during the month. Five hundred and forty-four ships arrived and 548 departed. Of the 544 arrivals, 115 were engaged in foreign trade, 120 in intercoastal service, 303 came from Pacific coast ports and six arrived from Hawaii. Practically the same development will eventually take place in Orange county harbor if your citizens will get together and determine to go forward on a development program."

There are more than 15,000 moving picture theaters in the United States. England has 4000.

One estimate gives the number of organized workers in the world at 40,925,610.

Birthday Party Takes Form of Dinner for Surprised Guest

Dalbert Wilkinson of the Grand Central apartments, who is connected with the Triangle Express, will long have a pleasant remembrance of his birthday anniversary, which was celebrated last Friday evening with an elaborate chicken dinner at the home of his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Smith, 802 East Sixth street.

The festive board was centered with a beautiful crystal basket filled with Cecil Brunner buds, sweet peas and cool-leaved ferns, while two other graceful baskets occupied other points of vantage in the dining room. A birthday cake was cut by the honored guest, the dainty confection being passed with the dessert course of ice cream in the prevailing tone.

When Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson arrived at the Smith home shortly before the dinner hour, they found that they were not the only guests, as Mr. Wilkinson's relatives had also been hidden to the merrymaking.

Besides the hosts and Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson, covers were laid for Duane Smith, son of the home, D. Wilkinson and his fiancée, Miss Viola Gill, who while in Santa Ana, obtained their license to be married early in June, Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Means, Virginia and La Verne Means, and Jess Clark.

The evening was passed with games and social chat, and Mr. Wilkinson was showered with appreciated gifts and many good wishes for happy birthdays.

Foreign Pupils Have Merry Evening

Seldom do social affairs have such significance as one planned recently by Mrs. L. Harter, at her home, 1105 West Third street, for guests at the unique party were her pupils in the night classes of the Americanization school, who were given a glimpse of the pleasure to be afforded at parties on the American plan.

Since most of the guests were from Mexico, the red, white and green of the sister republic's banners were combined with our own American flag in decorative effect. Bowls of beautiful flowers were also used in profusion.

The class is composed of young men and women from 14 to 20 years of age, who were able to continue school until the fifth grade and then compelled to go to work. Their need of further education has been impressed upon their minds, and their attendance at the classes conducted by Mrs. Harter, is most gratifying. Eleven enrolled in September, and the present enrollment is 21. One interesting member is a young Russian woman who speaks English fluently but wishes to learn reading and writing. She cannot attend the classes regularly, so visits her teacher's home thrice weekly for instruction.

At the evening party, a number of familiar games were played, proving new and delightful to the eager guests. These were interspersed with music by young Miss Elsie Harter at the piano. Miss Elsie has proven faithful indeed to the work, going each Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock to Franklin school and playing while her mother leads the singing. All her effort is for interest in the work and entirely without monetary remuneration.

Iced fruit punch was served throughout the evening, and at the refreshment hour, ice cream and home-made cake were served. Later the young people sought the lawn where moonlight games and relay races were staged under the captaincy of Manuel Castello and Pedro Gomez, the latter, president of Franklin Evening school.

Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, superintendent of Americanization work in the W. C. T. U., was among the interested guests. Her organization has given faithful aid and support to Mrs. Harter throughout the year, furnishing magazines for distribution, automobiles for various occasions and materials for cooking classes which have been incidental to teaching English to foreign women.

Efficiency Club Plans Pleasant Affair for Departing Head

The Efficiency club of the Southern Counties Gas company bade farewell to Jack C. Hayden, retiring district manager, who has been transferred to Los Angeles, at a gathering numbering 50 Orange county employees. The affair was held at the gas company's club rooms one evening last week and Mrs. Hayden shared honors with her husband.

One behalf of the club, Attorney L. A. West, the company's lawyer, presented a handsome white gold wrist watch, engraved "To Jack from the Orange County Employees," to Mr. Hayden and a beautiful vanity case to Mrs. Hayden. Although greatly touched by the thoughtfulness of the employees, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden expressed their appreciation. Other members made brief remarks expressing regret at the departure of their district manager and his family, but congratulated them upon their promotion.

During a social period when ice cream and cake were served, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden were showered with good wishes for their happiness in their new home.

Mrs. Kellogg Greets Friends in Garden

Garden parties are always charming during the spring months in California and the one given recently by Mrs. Will S. Kellogg at her home on Polinetta street, was no exception of the rule. Teachers at Frances Willard junior high school were guests. The afternoon was spent in the playing of various games and a prize was won by Miss Elsa Reuter. She received the gift because she was sitting in the chair with a lucky stamp on it.

Miss Lena Hodgins was presented with six sterling silver teaspoons as a gift from the faculty. Miss Hodgins is to be married sometime during the month of June. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Church Society

The hospitable home of Mrs. W. A. Phillips in Orange was opened last Friday to the women of Spurgeon Memorial church who assembled for a friendly afternoon.

Quantities of carnations and ferns added to the cheer of the occasion which was marked by the charm of true southern hospitality. About 60 Santa Ana women motored over for the affair and heard an interesting program presented by Hester Cove guests with Miss Hester Davidson of this city at the piano.

Delightful numbers included "Laughing Roses" by Cook and "Mis' Rose" by Hammond, sung by Mrs. Irving German; a violin solo, "Barcarolle" by Fisher, played by Anna Phillips and readings, "Rosa's Curiosity" and "Who's Afraid?" given by Velma King.

A friendly social hour followed the program, and refreshments were served by the hostess, aided by members of an entertainment committee.

The Woman's Alliance of the Unitarian church will meet Wednesday for an all-day session in the church parlors. Sewing will occupy the attention of the members.

Farewell Party Given Ere Honoree Goes To Pomona

Mrs. B. F. McBurney and her early departure with Mr. McBurney for Pomona to establish their home there, offered incentive for a party of pronounced charm planned recently by Miss Ruth Vieira and presented at her home on East Bishop street.

Guests comprised the office staff of the Southern Counties Gas company where both hostess and honoree have been closely associated. One of the interesting phases of the evening was connected with the new home in Pomona whose details were described by Mrs. McBurney and towards whose appointments, the guests contributed a handsome silver sandwich plate, their farewell gift to their departing friend.

Late in the evening, Miss Vieira, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Walter C. Vieira, served refreshments in which orange and black appointments harmonized with the attractive color scheme employed in all floral decorations.

Three Class Members Will Travel Abroad

In the party of 45 members of the Philathea class of the First Baptist church, which met on last Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Roland E. Dye, 824 Cypress avenue, it was ascertained that three are to enjoy a summer abroad. Miss Jennie Lasby, Miss Lula Minter and Miss Irene Catland are the fortunate trio, and they were presented with suitable gifts from the class.

In honor of the coming of guests for the May party, the day home was made into a garden of spring blossoms, from the regal Bermuda lily to the delicate daisy and the evening hours were whiled away with games. Late in the evening the hostess served delicious refreshments.

Liquor Reported Found In Machine

Charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, R. A. Etie, Jr., 25, advertising man, of 2611 Dalton avenue, Los Angeles, was arrested at 7:40 p. m. yesterday at Fourth and Main streets, when he is alleged to have driven his automobile too close to the traffic officer on the button.

Party Guests Share In Celebration of Anniversary

Not until they had enjoyed the hospitality of their hostess, Mrs. James Clark, throughout a pleasant afternoon and had reached the refreshment hour, did Innomina club members learn that they were aiding in the celebration of the thirtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clark.

The secret was revealed by little wedding bells gracing the pretty nut-cups used at the tables where the delicious refreshments were served in two courses. Mrs. Jo Ryan assisted her mother in serving and in other friendly details of the afternoon.

It was a hilarious occasion, the fun opening with an exhibition of the powers of magic of the hostess. Fancy work and the usual friendly chat all had a place on the program. Naturally when the news of the anniversary was related, the guests felt that it crowned the afternoon's pleasure and were enthusiastic in their wishes for many more equally happy celebrations.

Extending their congratulations to Mrs. Clark were Mesdames C. T. Wells, W. S. Chandler, Walter Moore, M. C. Williams, Harvey Riggle, J. Klever, Etta Webster, J. H. Tompkins, I. D. Annis, Jesse Elliott and one guest, Mrs. Elliott's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Birkhead.

Y. W. C. A. Club Has Interesting Visitor

The Wrycende Maegdeny held a very interesting meeting at the Y. W. C. A. rooms recently honoring Miss Richardson from Long Beach who is the Business Girls' secretary there. After a delightful dinner served by the members of the club Miss Richardson gave a very interesting talk on "Business Women I Have Known" which was enjoyed immensely by all present. She then invited the Wrycende Maegdeny to a party to be given by the Business Girls' club in Long Beach on June 17 to which event the club members are eagerly looking forward.

Mrs. Edgar McFadden was a guest of the club for the evening and other members present were the Misses Nancy Elder, Helen McPeak, Muriel Jerome, Suzanne Verburg, Florence Johnson, May Pierce, Melvina Fryma, Lorena Sauer, Dorothy Beckman, Daisy Anderson, Lucille Gates, Aletha Jones, Henrietta Lykke, Blanche Yokum, Geraldine Franklin and Miss Richardson.

Farewell Surprise Is Planned for Teacher Of S. S. Class

Completely surprised were the Rev. J. T. Burnett and Mrs. Burnett last Friday night when the jolly members of the Young Married People's class of the First Baptist church, tramped in upon them unawares. The Rev. Mr. Barnett is popular teacher of the class, and with his wife, will leave tomorrow for Texas. The party was a farewell event in their honor.

The pleasant evening passed all too quickly with merry chat, games and singing. Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester L. Marshburn were in charge of the games and one which proved very interesting was called "Ambassador," in which James M. Lauri and Spencer William Elliott were the captains. Delicious candies made by Mesdames James M. Lauri, William A. Hazen, Guy W. Paquette, and Sylvester L. Marshburn, were enjoyed by all.

The class president, William A. Hazen, in behalf of the class, presented the host with a box of stationery in appreciation of his help and interest in the class as their teacher, and with instructions to write to the class members while gone. Mr. Burnett replied with appropriate remarks. Mrs. Burnett was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, attesting to the love and esteem in which she is held by the class. A. R. Marshall will teach the class until the Burnetts return in the fall.

Mrs. A. H. Rothaermel of Fullerton was unanimously elected president of the Orange county branch of the National Council of Catholic Women, at a well attended meeting held Friday in St. Boniface hall, Anaheim, taking the place ably filled for the past two years by Mrs. F. J. Snyder.

Following the business meeting, a social afternoon with bridge and 500 was enjoyed, prizes for 500 being captured by Mrs. Joseph Carroll, Mrs. J. G. Harlow and Mrs. J. J. Schneider and Miss Elizabeth E. Arnold, Mrs. W. J. Heinz and Mrs. Clyde Ashen for bridge. Delicious fruitade and wafers were served late in the afternoon.

EARLY HISTORY OF ORANGE COUNTY TOLD AT MEETING OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY

By OLIVE LOPEZ

The Orange County Historical society is doing a notable work in gathering reliable data about the pioneers and the work they have done in founding cities and institutions here. The place of Saturday's meeting was changed from the Ebell clubhouse in Santa Ana to the Round Table clubhouse in Placentia, so as to get the atmosphere of the program planned by William McPherson, chairman of the program committee.

and married Miss Sarah Jane Earl. Mustard, was driven by Edward R. Ford (Carrie McFadden Ford), who claims the distinction of being the oldest woman settler of the Placentia district, were hostesses for the afternoon and served cooling punch and cake to the members present. Dr. Charles D. Ball, president of the society, presided, and introduced the two speakers, Mrs. Ford and George H. Amerige, the former giving "The Story of Placentia" and the latter, "The Founding of Fullerton." Both were of absorbing interest and steps will be taken to have them together will all of the other papers read before the society, put in shape so that they may be had for reference.

Mrs. Ford said in part: "Just what the urge is that will cause people to leave settled communities with good homes, schools, churches and all of the advantages which go with large cities to live in a country without a neighbor, not a tree nor a drop of water to be had nearer than two miles, it difficult to understand."

Experiences Told

The daughter of that intrepid pioneer, William M. McFadden, then told of his experiences when he came from Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1854, by way of the Isthmus of Panama, landing in San Francisco, where he taught school in Alameda county, and marrying Miss Sarah Jane Earl. Word reached him of the wonderful opportunities of the south and with his brother, Joseph McFadden, he came to Los Angeles in December, 1865.

The two brothers purchased 100 acres of land for $10 an acre, covered with high mustard, north of what is now Chapman and Placentia avenues, and which is still owned by the McFadden family, which consisted of five sons and one daughter. Their funds soon gave out and as both men were teachers they secured schools. W. M. McFadden teaching at what was then Santa Ana and now Yorba. He taught there 11 years and then became superintendent of schools of Los Angeles county, this county then being a part of it.

Mrs. Ford recited the difficulty of obtaining water wells, digging having to be done with a spade, the first well on the McFadden ranch being 130 feet deep. She recounted the havoc done to crops by grasshoppers and heavy winds and the planting of oranges for which seeds were obtained from barrels of rotten oranges from Acapulco, Mexico. W. M. McFadden having been the second man to go into the orange growing business.

The paper gave note of the part other pioneer families took in the building of the now beautiful Placentia town and district, including John Hanna, J. B. Stone, the Yorbass, Abel Stearns, Peter and Charles Hansen, The Kremers, J. K. Tuffree, J. B. Pierce, William Crowther, A. H. Bradford and many others.

Story of Placentia
Placentia means "beautiful situation," the name being given by Miss Minnie Martin, the first teacher, the place being previously El Cajon. J. P. Greeley, well known citizen of Balboa, was the first teacher in the new school building built in 1884. He was also first superintendent of schools of Orange county in 1889.

Mrs. Ford told the history of irrigation and the first election to secure the wish of the people to take water from the Santa Ana river under the Bush act, in which 33 voted for and seven against the plan, this being the voting strength of what comprised the sand wash north of Anaheim.

George H. Amerige is one of the pioneers who has carefully preserved pictures and records pertaining to Fullerton, of which he and his brother, E. R. Amerige, were the founders. Mr. Amerige read an excellent and authentic history of the now flourishing city, still retaining the deeds of the 290 acres purchased from the Miles estate, all of which are written in longhand.

Mr. Amerige said that at the close of the great boom of 1886-1887, when Southern California was attracting the attention of the whole United States, two brothers, George H. and Edward R. Amerige, of Malden, Mass., a suburb of Boston, came to California. After a careful investigation of the country about what is now Fullerton, they bought 290 acres on May 14, 1887, from the Miles estate, 20 acres from William Fisher and 20 acres from Joseph Prantz. In all 430 acres and the original townsite of Fullerton was platted.

Hearing that the California Central railway company, now the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, would build a line from Los Angeles to San Diego, the Amerige brothers induced a change in the line to run through their tract, giving the company an interest in the townsite to accomplish their purpose. The first train reached the town in the fall of 1888.

First Stake Driven
Frank Olmstead, of Los Angeles, surveyed and platted the townsite and the first stake, in a field of later by windmill. The first pipe line for the water system was put down in April, 1888, Chinamen, many of whom were used in early days, doing the digging.

The street lighting system was a wooden lamp post with a coal oil lamp presented by the street lighter of Anaheim to G. H. Amerige and installed by him at the corner of Commonwealth and Spadra Road. The first school teacher was Edwin Clark, whose daughter, Norma, was the first girl born in Fullerton. Roy Fullerton Schumacher, son of P. A. Schumacher, being the first child to see the light there on April 7, 1888. The first religious society was formed in a hall that is now owned by the Odd Fellows with a membership of 13, by Rev. R. R. Holcomb and he officiated at the first wedding. The first church was erected in 1889, the pastor being Rev. George A. Irwin. The St. George's hotel, costing $75,000, was the first building of importance, the edifice being sold in 1918 by G. H. Amerige for $1300, having been razed to make way for four business blocks.

Going down through the history of various first business enterprises Mr. Amerige stated that the first newspaper was the Fullerton Star, printed by W. Clark Hogaboom on April 25, 1889, the first issue being in Mr. Amerige's possession. After it went out of existence Edgar Johnson started the Fullerton Tribune, which still survives.

First Postmaster

The paper stated that among the pioneers, only a few of whom remain, E. E. Beasley was the first postmaster; Dr. George C. Clark, the first physician; T. S. Grimshaw, first lumber yard; William Starbuck, first druggist; P. A. Schumacher started the nursery; Mrs. Dierksen, restaurant, and Jonathan Kramer the first livery stable. The Josslyn brothers built and operated the cannery, G. A. Brunschwicker had the meat market and George Case was the plumber. The first hardware store was operated by Buchanan and Lipe and Amerige brothers had the real estate and insurance office. George Amerige built the first residence on the corner of Harvard and Amerige avenues. L. A. Peckham was the first photographer and A. A. Prendergrast had the first blacksmith shop. Fullerton was enlarged and incorporated a sixth class city July 15, 1904, and embraced 18 square miles with a population of more than 2000, and which now numbers 12,000. The first trustees were Dr. George C. Clark, E. R. Amerige, E. K. Benchley, J. R. Gardiner and Charles C. Chapman.

Fullerton now owns its own water plant, has a fine lighting system, its outfall sewer to the sea, and paved streets. There are many packing houses and other industries, fine public library, theater, beautiful clubhouse with all religious and fraternal organizations represented. There are three railroads and bus lines entering the city.

Mr. Amerige exhibited a book containing many beautiful scenes of the Fullerton of yesterday. Discussion of the two interesting papers following their reading, and many bits of old history about the Placentia and Fullerton districts were told by William McPherson, G. H. Amerige, Judge J. E. Pleasant and Mrs. Victor Montgomery. The program opened with two delightful vocal numbers by Mr. Harmony of Placentia.

BREA-OLINDA HIGH SCHOOL PLANS TO BE READY SOON; GRADING OPERATIONS BEGIN

BREA, May 31.—According to the architect, T. C. Kistner, plans for the new Brea-Olinda union high school will be ready within a week. Immediately upon their receipt by the school board, bids will be received and the contract let.

In the meantime, a tractor has been purchased and the work of grading the new road across the west end of the grounds has begun. As soon as this is finished, the tractor will be used in the grading of the athletic field, which is to consist of a quarter mile track, baseball, football and basketball fields. All grading work has been awarded to J. J. Fackelman, of Brea.

A perspective of the main building of the unit was on display in the Close drug store window last week. This building will house the administrative offices, chemistry and physics laboratories, cooking and sewing class rooms and an auditorium which is designed to seat about 1100 persons. The stage of this auditorium will be thoroughly equipped with all modern appliances in the way of lights, dimmers, curtains, stage properties and scenery and will have a proscenium arch 34 feet wide by 13 feet high. The auditorium will provide an excellent community center for the entire district. An organ loft is also to be installed at this time for an organ which is to be purchased later. Modern science appliances have been purchased this year, and more are being purchased for the use of the students who are now taking these courses and these will be transferred to the new building early next year. A thoroughly modern cafeteria will occupy the rear portion of the building and meals will be served to the students who are now taking these courses and these will be transferred to the new building early next year. A thoroughly modern cafeteria will occupy the rear portion of the building and meals will be served to the students at exact cost.

The plans call for a 60 by 200 foot building for what is to be a well equipped and modern shop which will include wood-working rooms, mechanical drawing, machine shop, auto repair shop, electric and acetylene welding and a forge.

A gymnasium with a floor space of nearly 6000 square feet with bleachers on the sides over the lockers will be located near the athletic field. Heavy canvas curtains will divide this room in the center, making it possible for the boys to occupy one half of it while the girls use the other half.

The much discussed "clouded title" of the present site has dissolved into thin air with the receipt by the school board of guaranteed titles from the title company. The Graham-Loftus Oil company reserves the oil rights on its tract but waives all entry for drilling purposes, which gives the board a clear title. The Culp and Sexton deed was received without reservation of any kind. A deed from the county supervisors has been received by the board for one half the right of way lying between these two tracts, the other half of this right of way to be abandoned by the city trustees of Brea at their next meeting, it is expected. The school board will insist upon the hiring of local men wherever possible in any and all construction work connected with the building of this school.

BREA

BREA, May 31.—June 7 has been named as the next meeting date of the Brea Progressive club, to be held in the Chamber of Commerce building. The public is invited. Edmund D. Barry has filed with the city trustees of Brea an official protest against the closing of the road leading to his premises from Birch street through the new Brea-Olinda union high school tract. This is the road, lying between the Culp and Sexton tract and the Graham-Loftus tract, which has been ordered closed by the county supervisors in order to throw the two tracts together.

Several members of the Congregational church took well filled lunch baskets Saturday and motored to Bixby park, where they enjoyed a meeting of the Foreign Missionary society of the church. The Junior society members were also in the party.

Oliver Thornton, formerly postmaster of Brea, is now employed in the local Daley store in the absence of F. W. Byers, manager, who is in Pima most of the time on business connected with oil interests there.

Dinner guests at the Harlan Epla home the last of the week were Mr. and Mrs. Earle Loney, of Laguna Beach, former residents of Brea. Mr. Loney is recovering nicely from injuries received several weeks ago when a team with which he was doing some grading work became frightened and ran, dragging him beneath the harrow.

A first class meat market and grocery store is to be opened by F. A. Ball about June 15 in the room just vacated by the Wright Book and Stationery store in the Sewell building. Mr. Ball and family are well known in Brea, where they have lived for the past several years and where Mr. Ball was at one time connected with the meat market of the Chaffee store.

A. D. Yost and George Whitmer motored Friday to Piru, where they went in the interest of business connected with an oil deal in that locality.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 31.—Hope of Huntington Beach residents of an early test of the oil possibilities in the western section of the city seem about to be realized. The Superior Oil company, known as one of the most efficient and aggressive oil concerns in California, has started construction of a derrick at Twenty-second street and Ocean boulevard.

For a district which only a few weeks ago was touted as one of the boom prospects in the way of a boom field in this state, Huntington Beach has proved to be a decided dud. The boom which was to follow the removal of restrictions against drilling in the west end of the town has not boomed.

One month after it became legal to begin drilling in the new field, not a bit was rotating in the west end of Huntington Beach. During the last 30 days, two derricks have been built in that area. One of these started work and drilled a hole to 750 feet, where it stopped work. Carpenters are now building a derrick for a third project.

The reason for the sudden deflation of enthusiasm at Huntington Beach is rather difficult to trace. The comparative smallness of production in recent standard wells bordering the west side of the former restricted area is given as one factor, but it is not generally regarded as being the only factor, or even the most important one.

Another reason is said to be the restrictions placed by the city upon the manner of operating. These restrictions include a license fee of $120, prohibition against smoking in the proximity of wells and requirements for elaborate fire protection and protection.

Probably the principal reason for the delayed action at Huntington Beach is the quiet movement which the active spirits in the recent election campaign are conducting to center control of the prospective field in the hands of a few of the substantial operators, thus making it impossible, or at least difficult for the little, under-financed syndicates to get into the field and spoil it not only for their neighbors, but for themselves.

Contrary to general opinion, oil fields have only so much oil, and it is frequently sufficient for only a limited number of operators. This is a recognized fact in the oil industry, and as the Huntington Beach district is not expected to be anything sensational, it is only natural that the companies who think they can operate there profitably should take such steps as they can to keep others out of the district.

The Wilshire Oil company stopped work, apparently for an indefinite period, after drilling to 750 feet, and setting casing at 700 feet. The Julian derrick is still idle.

Meat Inspectors Arrest L. A. Driver

FULLERTON, May 31.—The trial of D. Smith, driver for a meat company in Los Angeles, has been set for June 4. Smith was detained in Fullerton last week by the state meat inspector and the local meat inspector for driving around town with the meat on his truck uncovered. Apparently $100 worth of meat was condemned and destroyed. Smith was released on $200 bail.

Mrs. Fred Dustin motored down from their home in Santa Paula Saturday and spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Epla. They were accompanied by their grandsons, Russell and Lawe Freisen.

The community school picnic held in Genesha park was a decided success, with about 250 present. The afternoon hours were spent by many in the plunge, while baseball fans watched with interest the game between Pomona and Pasadena colleges.

Supper was served at 6 o'clock and the entire party motored home about 8 o'clock. Members of the Lions club furnished 10 gallons of ice cream, as well as numerous gallons of lemonade. They also furnished the transportation.

J. G. Crook, of Potter's garage, has been chosen as scoutmaster of the Brea troops to succeed Herbert Hall, who was recently transferred from his duties at the Pacific Electric station here to the company's station at Compton.

June 6 has been set aside by the Christian church of Brea on which to hold its Children's day exercises. The evening program will be presented by the young people. This congregation was well represented in the union picnic held in Orange county park recently and took second place in the field events of the day.

Rev. Olfeld, of Ashland, Ore., a minister of many years service and formerly on the Chautauqua platform, filled the pulpit of the Congregational church both Sunday morning and evening.

The final meeting of the Brea Parent-Teacher association met this afternoon in the auditorium of the Brea grammar school, with Mrs. C. A. Marcy, president of the Fullerton P.-T. A., as the principal speaker. Special music was furnished by the Brea-Olinda union high school orchestra and glee club. A meeting of the executive board preceded the open meeting.

Miss Esther Corlett, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Corlett, of the Brea Nazarene church, was taken Sunday to the Fullerton hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Bathtub In Fullerton Takes Trip

FULLERTON, May 31.—A very peculiar accident happened in Fullerton Saturday, when Howard Corcose, a sailor from the U. S. S. Mississippi, drove his car out of Jack's garage on North Spadra. As he drove the car out of the rear end of the garage, he evidently lost control of his car and the auto plunged into the Clarke apartments, tearing down part of the wall in one of the rooms and plowed into the bath room, moving the bath tub out of its accustomed place. No one was in the tub at the time.

Probably $100 damage was done. Corcose agreed to pay for the repair. No damage was done to the car.

Maitland Smith Dies at Newhall

FULLERTON, May 31.—A former resident of Fullerton, Maitland Smith, passed away in Newhall, near San Fernando, Thursday night at the age of 58.

He is survived by a son, Roy, living in Newhall; his mother, Caroline E. Smith; two brothers, Boyd and Gregg Smith, of Brea; five sisters, Mrs. Edna Miller, Mrs. W. Young and Mrs. Charles Young, all of La Habra; Mrs. Criss Hemmelen, of Sepe, Ventura county, and Mrs. Ralph Halderman, of Santa Fe Springs.

The funeral will be conducted tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the McAulay-Suter parlors. A Christian Science reader will be in charge of the services. The Fullerton lodge of Odd Fellows will officiate at the services in Loma Vista cemetery.

Students' Work On Exhibition

FULLERTON, May 31.—Some of the work done by the arts and crafts class of the Fullerton union high school, under the instruction of Glenn Lukens, has been placed on display in the windows of the Chapman building, through the courtesy of J. P. Glenn Furniture company.

The display includes pottery, jewelry and hand-wrought metals. The work of about 50 students is represented in the display. The display will remain in the windows until Wednesday night.

Death Attempt Still Mystery

FULLERTON, May 31.—The mystery around the attempted asphyxiation of two men, W. H. Apple and Lawrence Sights, at 126 East Truslow avenue, on the night of May 23, remains unsolved. On this night the two men were awakened at about 11 o'clock with the room filled with gas.

The men declare that absolutely nothing can be learned concerning the attempt. However, the men are anxiously awaiting new clues to turn up which might lead to arrests.

NOTED BANKER PASSES AT BEACH

BALBOA, May 31.—Walter H. Lutz, of 303 Palmetto Drive, Pasadena, vice president and cashier of the First National bank of Los Angeles and one of the most widely known bankers in California, died suddenly of an acute attack of angina pectoris at Balboa yesterday. Having been troubled for the past three weeks with incipient attacks, Mr. Lutz, accompanied by his wife, had been spending some days on the south coast in an effort to regain his health.

On Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Lutz dined with friends at the Yacht club, but retired early. The attack came shortly after midnight.

Mr. Lutz was born December 22, 1872, in Norristown, Pa., one of the prominent banking families on the eastern seaboard. From 1899 to 1934, he served with the Centennial National bank of Philadelphia. He came to California and settled in Pasadena 32 years ago, and affiliated with the National bank of California.

With Mrs. Lutz (Genevieve Church) he soon became socially prominent among the old families of Southern California, and was a member of the exclusive Valley Hunt and Caldron clubs of Pasadena.

Although Mr. Lutz's body has been removed from Balboa to Pasadena, arrangements for funeral have not yet been completed and await conference with Capt. H. W. Rhodes, of Berkeley.

WHAT DOES AN

examination mean to you? Is it worthy of your consideration if you are sick? Would you be willing to spend a few minutes today in order to determine exactly what is causing your trouble, if in doing so you are put to no expense and are under no obligation in any way? It is certain you would. Then if you are willing, act at once as it may save you a great deal of suffering later on. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Health is the result of perfect co-ordination of all the organs of the body; however, if these parts are not co-ordinating one with another the result is sickness and disease. Are your kidneys, lungs, bowels, spleen, stomach pancreas, heart, liver and bladder working as they should? If not, how can you expect to be well? Disorders such as toxic poisoning, asthma, constipation, diabetes, indigestion, weak heart, biliousness, bladder trouble, lumbago, rheumatism, headache, nervousness and that tired, worn-out feeling which comes over you in the morning when you should be at your best are results of a weakened condition of some of the above organs. This weakness is directly due to a pressure on the nerves supplying functional energy to the affected parts. Without this nerve force or energy no part of the body will work as it should. A

PHILADELPHIA ABOUT READY FOR OPENING OF GREAT SESQUI-CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION

Features of the Sesqui-Centennial International exposition at Philadelphia will be the gorgeous Peruvian pavilion, upper left, the auditorium, upper right, which will accommodate 20,000, and the immense model of the Liberty bell, lower right, which stands at the main gate. The view of the grounds, lower left, shows the $1,000,000 palace of agriculture and food products. The exposition will formally open June 14 and close December 1.

PLAN CELEBRATION OF NEW OIL STRIKE

BAKERSFIELD, May 29.—"We will show the world that Bakersfield is the same old gusher town," said President Henry J. Brandt of the Civic Commercial association, in speaking of plans for a special program on Friday, June 11, in which oil men will be invited to participate in recognition of the importance of the recent strike by the Shell company in Mt. Poso district, 20 miles north of this city, and the important developments east of Famosa, Lerdo and Saco, to the northwest of this city, made by George F. Getty, Inc., proving up commercial oil values in a wide area. Dwight G. and Richard Vedder, pioneer geologists, it is said, may be induced to make brief speeches. The affair will be in the hands of a committee on arrangements and many extra reservations are expected.

Our Neighbors

MONROVIA—A huge new union high school plant for Monrovia, Arcadia and Duarte, ready to receive pupils within two years, rivaling in architectural splendor and educational prominence the finest high grade schools in the state, and adequate to care for needs of the three growing communities for a long period of years, is heralded as the result of a joint conference of Monrovia and Arcadia high school committees at Arcadia. Arcadia's legal attempts to separate from the Monrovia high school district are at an end and the city stands ready to back with its resources and its votes a splendid union high school plant. A. N. Multer, principal figure in the three-year court litigation in the school controversy, told assembled delegates.

SAN DIEGO—San Diego river sand is worth a lot of money. When City Clerk A. H. Wright auctioned off a five-year lease on pueblo lot 35, ex-Mission rancho, this sand-bearing property, on the San Diego river, brought $9500 for the five-year period. The Penton-Penton Material corporation was the high bidder. Some time ago, the company offered $50 a month for a five-year lease on the land. The city attorney ruled that the property would have to be put up at public auction. At the auction, the bidding became spirited. The first bid was $2000, but the amount was rapidly run up to $9500. The sand at this point on the river is especially fine for building purposes. For many years contractors were allowed to haul it away without paying anything.

PASADENA—Seven new carriers for the Pasadena postal system have been authorized by the department at Washington, beginning June 15, according to an announcement made by Postmaster William F. Knight. As a result a large territory in the suburban district will receive city mail delivery and San Marino will come under the jurisdiction of the local system. The addition of the Pasadena postal system will give the Pasadena postal system a total of 119 carriers, three of whom are rural men. The growth of the city, which has been at a steady pace for many years, without any outstanding boom, was the main factor in the allotment of the seven mail men. Most of the territory concerned in the change is that from the edge of Pasadena where the number of new homes, meaning additional postal patrons, is constantly increasing.

Wild Geese Are Menace to Big Bend Ranchers

WHITE SALMON, Wn., May 31.—Unnatural and unprecedented behavior of a flock of wild geese, estimated to number more than 25,000, has been reported by farmers in the Big Bend section of eastern Washington.

Last winter, the huge flocks of honkers violated the semi-annual custom of traveling south and remained in southern Washington during the winter because it was so mild.

An organized effort of wheat growers drove them over the Columbia river, but they returned to continue eating young sprouting grain.

Then when spring came along, the geese refused to go north on their pilgrimage to Canada, until long past the normal season, according to the harassed farmers.

FORMER KANSANS FROLIC AT PARK

ORANGE, May 31.—Kansans from all parts of Southern California gathered 1200 strong in Orange County park Saturday for the annual picnic and entertainment. With members of the Orange Community chamber of commerce acting as hosts to the Kansans, the affair went over with a bang, according to V. D. Johnson, chamber secretary.

Following the picnic lunch at noon, speeches were given by Ralph Woodford, Orange, in welcome to the group; W. F. Schock, Long Beach, who responded, and C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State Societies.

Dancing and visiting occupied the crowd until late afternoon.

7 Million Trout Eggs Are Taken

PORTLAND, Ore., May 31.—Trout egg-taking operations in Yamath and Deschutes counties have been unusually successful this year, according to M. L. Ryckman, superintendent of the state hatcheries. Five million eggs have been taken from Spencer creek, while Deschutes county has furnished two million eggs.

4 BURN TO DEATH

BOONE, Ia., May 29.—Four children of Lyle Harris, a farmer, were burned to death and another child was burned, possibly fatally, when fire destroyed the Harris home. Mrs. Harris suffered burns in an attempt to rescue them.

Plans have for Riverside, a survey of sales increases will be attempted soon by the chamber of commerce. This was decided at a meeting of the retail trades committee of the chamber, at the city hall. In the past, it was brought out at the meeting, the value of conventions has been conceded, and no concerted effort made to discover its extent. By this survey, members declared, merchants will be asked to give their gross receipts for convention week, and for the seven-day periods immediately preceding and following it.

VENTURA, May 29.—For the first time in history, Santa Barbara National forest, extending from Monterey to the Los Angeles county line, is to be closed to smoking except in camp grounds at the opening of the official fire season, commencing next Tuesday, it was announced by Forest Supervisor Mendenhall, upon whose recommendations the new rule has been put into effect. The dense growth of underbrush as a result of late rains is given as the reason for the new move. A recent check on fires within the forest last year showed a large percentage of them to be due to careless use of tobacco and matches along the roads and trails. Mendenhall has also suggested that matches taken into the forest be kept in metal boxes in order to prevent fire, and to keep them from being nibbled by rats, this form of "incendiarism" having caused many fires in the past.

Nation's 150th Birthday Celebration to Start On June 14

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—The nation's 150th birthday party—Philadelphia's Sesqui-Centennial International exposition—is about to begin.

June to November, inclusive, is the period for it, and throughout these six months, Philadelphia will be a-flutter with circumstances and embroidery.

The name "Rainbow City" has been given to the Sesqui panorama, and if ever a name fitted, this may claim to be the one. It is emerging from the dark clouds of financial insecurity, the murk of lassitude, the wind-storms of talk and the thunderings of political strife. From such a tempestuous start, the Sesqui appears now as an arc of hope. And in the shimmering beauty of its dress and the carnival of its pageantry, athletics and human assemblages, it offers all the gorgeous color of any rainbow.

Built in Six Months

The Sesqui existed mostly in blue-prints as late as six months ago. Now, however, you may see a thousand men at work every day and night in League Island park, and out of their labor a $20,000,000 fairland is being created.

June 14 is the day for the first formal opening. By that time, say the Sesqui's officials, the big show will be 90 per cent complete.

From the very opening day, the Rainbow City promises, there will be a big half dollar's worth in store for every sightseer who drops in a coin to hear the turnstiles click.

One of the first troubles for the Sesqui to survive was a bitter feud between the north and south sections of the city, over choice of the site.

Then the program fell smack into the political breach which opened between Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick and Gen. Smedley D. Butler, former head of the city's police department.

"Kendrick's own private show," the Butlers called the exposition project.

Strife Echoes Die Away But nearly all echoes of the political clash have died away now. They have been drowned by the bang and bustle of craftsmen and machinery. The hatchet has been buried beneath the plaster and paint and green turf and gay bunting of accomplishment.

When President Coolidge delivers the Sesqui address on July 4—the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence—it will be more than the nation's birthday. It will be the semi-centennial, also, of that first great exposition in Philadelphia in 1876, brought together by proclamation of President Grant.

The old Centennial, although the father of all the great American expositions, in many ways could not stand comparisons with its lusty young offspring. Money bought more in those days, but even at that the Centennial cost only about half of the Sesqui outlay. And the 10,000,000 admissions of 50 years ago, it is believed, will be surpassed by the big crowds of 1926.

Liberty Bell Motif

The Liberty bell, most venerated of Philadelphia's lares and penates, is the dominating motif of the decorative scheme. A stadium seating 100,000 is the centerpiece. An auditorium accommodating 20,000 persons—notice the figure again and think what a crowd—is about ready, and two giant exhibition halls spread over an expanse of 17 acres.

Benjamin Franklin, the Philadelphia kite flyer, will be responsible for some of the most dazzling of the exposition's splendors. There lights visible, 'tis said, as far as will be concentrations of electric New York.

To art lovers, the Sesqui promises exhibits from nearly every corner of the globe. The "Gladway" is to be the playground of the celebration.

Japan has set the pace in exhibits from across the seas. On the display of arts and manufactures of the Land of the Rising Sun, $1,000,000 will be spent. Other nations and states will be there, of course.

For the "tin can tourists" benefit, eight official auto camps have been set aside.

A resolution urging congress to pass the Swain-Johnson bill for the development of the Colorado river before adjournment was unanimously adopted at Long Beach Saturday at a conference of Republicans of the 17 counties of Southern California, according to Dr. R. A. Cushman, chairman of the Orange County Republican Central committee, who attended with other Orange county representatives.

A fund was subscribed to pay the expenses of E. E. Hale, chairman of the Imperial County Republican Central committee, as a special messenger to take the resolution to Washington and present it to President Coolidge and congressional Republican leaders.

Thomas W. McManus, of Bakersfield; S. C. Evans, of Riverside, and Mrs. O. P. Clark, Republican national committeewoman, were among the speakers.

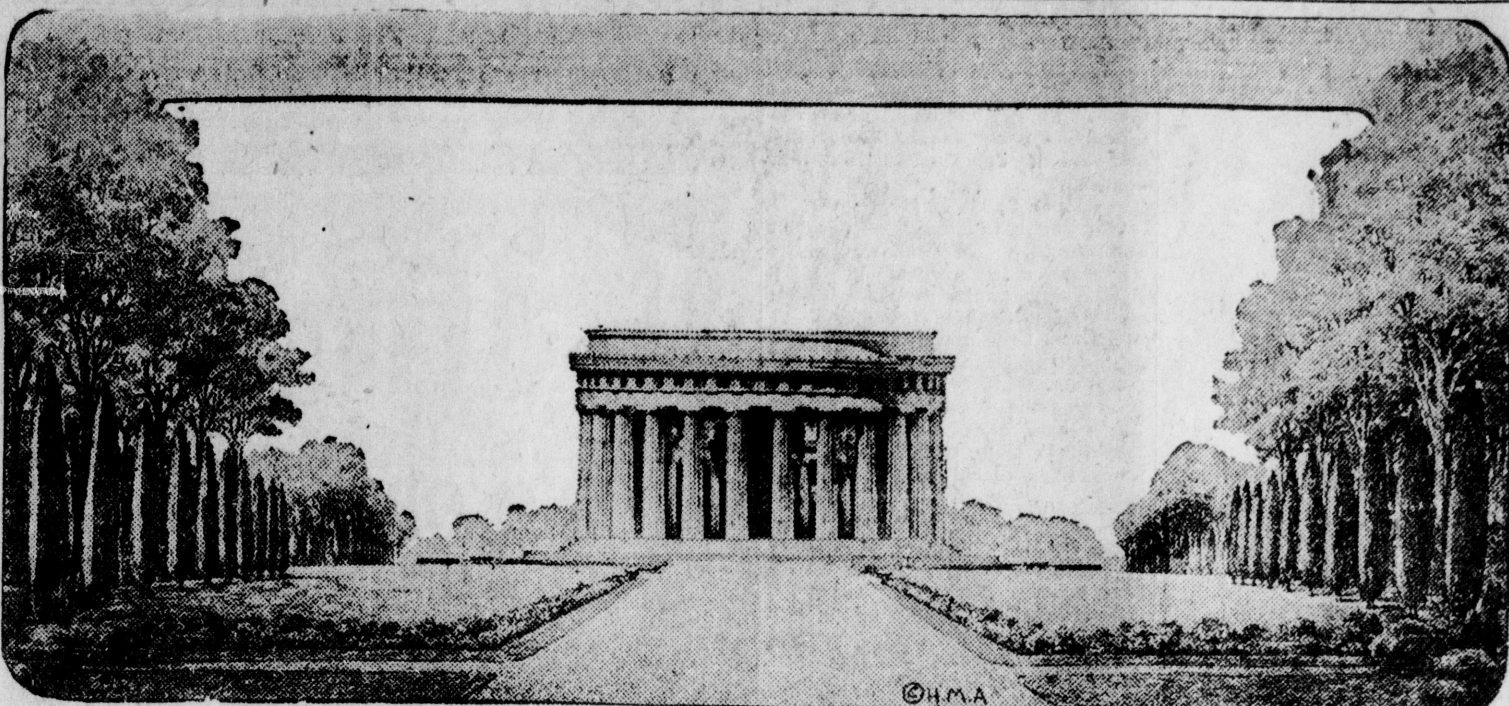

150 in Attendance
About 150 county representatives attended the conference.

The resolution asking President Coolidge to renew his efforts for flood protection and river development was drafted by a committee headed by Dr. Cushman, Francis Cutler, of Riverside; R. C. Harbison, of San Bernardino; Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, of South Pasadena, and Mrs. Walter K. Tuller, of Los Angeles.

The resolution follows:
"Whereas, it is vitally important and immediately necessary to the southwest that the uncontrolled floods of the Colorado river and its flood waters be conserved for the irrigation of lands in the United States for domestic use in rapidly growing cities of the region and for generation of power essential to the development of territory far distant from coal supply;

"And, whereas, as a result of years of study and investigation by government engineers and officials a plan for the development of the Colorado river by a large dam and reservoir at the Boulder canyon and an all-American canal has been worked out, by means of which the flood danger from the river will be removed and its waters be conserved for use in this country and in a manner consistent with the public interest and all this without outlay from the federal treasury and without imposing any burden on federal taxpayers, which plan of development is authorized by legis-

CORNERSTONE LAID FOR $800,000 HARDING MEMORIAL, WHICH WILL HOLD SARCOPHAGUS OF LATE PRESIDENT

FARM ADVISOR TO SHOW HOW TO SAVE TREES

For the benefit of citrus growers who were not able to attend the series of inarching demonstrations held two weeks ago by the agricultural extension service, an opportunity will be given to see the process of inarching demonstrated next Wednesday morning, June 2, at 10 o'clock, according to announcement from the farm advisor's office. The demonstration will be held at the place of F. C. Latham on Santa Clara street, one-half mile east of Grand avenue, approximately two miles east of Santa Ana and two miles southeast of Orange.

Many citrus trees have been lost by girdling from gopher injury that might have been saved by proper treatment and inarching if taken in time. Proper materials for painting the wounds and the details concerning the process of inarching grafting will be demonstrated in detail by the farm advisor.

The same treatment might be applied to trees that have been partially or completely girdled by Gummosis.

A general invitation is extended to the citrus growers of Orange county to witness the demonstration.

Profanity Hill
May Go Begging
For Better Name

SEATTLE, May 31.—"Profanity hill" may go begging for a more appropriate name, if new street improvements are put through as proposed.

Seattle's "cursed" mountain, so named because many a teamster, many an autoist and many a pedestrian has sworn profusely in negotiating its summit, may be improved with new cuts and grades.

The hill came into its greatest notoriety when someone built the old King county courthouse on top of it. Since those days, the building has been converted into a jail.

Dawes Officiates at Memorial Day Exercises
At Marion, O.

MARION, O., May 31.—The first stone of the Harding memorial, which will be a huge sarcophagus of white marble, was set in place here Sunday by Vice President Dawes. The memorial to be erected at a cost of $800,000, will be completed in 18 months. Thousands of persons stood in front of the platform of plain scintillating or perched on the rises of ground which surround the memorial site and watched Mr. Dawes spread the mortar for the cornerstone, as the Republican Club, of Columbus, chanted "Open the Gates of the Temple."

Twin slabs of black marble inside the tomb, which will take the form of a circle, surmounted by 48 white marble columns, 50 feet in height, will mark the last resting place of Warren G. Harding, 29th president of the United States, and of his wife, Florence Kling Harding.

Funds From all Over U. S.
Funds for the structure were contributed from all section of the country. It will be the first national attempt to preserve the memory of President Harding and was conceived by members of his official family on the train which bore him across the country.

U. S. Senators Willis and Fess, of Ohio, whose political careers for a quarter of a century were linked with those of Harding; Gov. V. Donahay, J. S. Frelinghuysen, former U. S. senator from New Jersey; Postmaster General New; George B. Christian Jr., formerly secretary to President Harding, and others who were associated with him in administering the affairs of government, had a part in the program.

On the speakers' platform, too, were seen the informal felt hats of the middle west intermingled with silk toppers, for friends from Marion and Morrow counties and other places in Ohio, who had known Warren Harding when he "rode into town on the back of a gray mule."

Following the stories, Mrs. Nelson presented each child with a paper "jumping doll" which had been donated to the children's department of the library especially for the doll party by the White King Soap company, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Nelson announced that the story hour for this week would be held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock instead of Saturday morning.

On Saturday morning, June 12, the stories will deal with musical appreciation and Little Miss Carry Kimball will dance for those present.

INTEREST IN HARBOR BONDS IS INCREASING

Business Firms Literally Swamp Newport Chamber in Quest of Data

By EDWARD I. WHEELER
(Special to Register)

Outside interest in Orange County's harbor development is daily increasing. The Harbor Chamber of Commerce at Newport Beach is literally swamped with communications from business firms, industrial leaders and communities, requesting further information concerning this great project.

The harbor commission of the city of Santa Barbara recently visited Orange County harbor in a body to inspect the jetty and further acquaint themselves with the development situation. Edward E. Hoskell, secretary of the Santa Barbara Harbor commission, has since written to obtain for that body the technical cost of the local project, and the personnel of the engineering staff.

Santa Barbara county has not the natural harbor which Orange county enjoys, but Santa Barbara county, when it wants an asset that nature has not provided for it, peels off its collective coat and with inspiring unanimity of purpose goes after it. The city of Santa Barbara is one of the wealthiest municipalities in California, but the city of Santa Barbara did not get that way by waiting for nature to get things for them. It stresses its natural assets and creates those which are lacking, and it attracts and holds people of wealth, intelligence, progressiveness—qualities which insure to a forward-going community a real future of prosperity and happiness.

No Comparison
Santa Barbara bay has long been famous as a yachting center, yet it has not anything like the natural advantages of Orange County Harbor for that purpose—or for any other purpose. But Santa Barbara has put its shoulder behind its harbor project and with a vote of 25 to 1, authorized a bond issue which will give its needed development one huge boost.

Orange County has a far greater opportunity to attract industrial expansion than has Santa Barbara county—or in fact any other county in California. It already has a protected harbor without a peer—but a harbor with an entrance that is a constant menace to navigation. With the upper basin of Newport bay which only awaits development, there will be provided a total of 3,250 acres of water in a protected and land-locked area—larger than the combined water acreage of Greater Los Angeles harbor, including Wilmington and Long Beach.

Industry Must Expand
Industrial enterprises do not locate branches in sluggish territory; the Federal Government does not extend its aid to communities which will do nothing to better their own conditions. But let any section show signs of progression and the eyes of the industrial and commercial world are focussed upon it, and the federal government stands ready to extend a helping hand. Industry must expand—it cannot stand still.

Industry is a fighter, but industry like a fighting animal, does not relish a contest against a dormant opponent. It plants its tentacles in aggressive territory and thrives best in competition.

Orange county needs to progress, and Orange County can, with its wealth of natural resources, hand on to its growing children a heritage of prosperity enjoyed by no other commonwealth in the entire West.

But Orange county must not let slip the opportunity for speedy advancement offered by an improved harbor. Industry must be attracted to Orange county, and industry will not locate where it has no outlet for its products nor inlet for its raw materials.

The extremely low cost of the Harbor Bond issue to the taxpayer today will be returned to him tomorrow a hundred-fold through increased revenues and assets that only a modern water outlet can bring.

The National Banker, a magazine devoted exclusively to the banking interests, makes the unequivocal statement that the combined dividends paid by the gold and silver mining companies of the United States, are greater than the combined dividends paid by all the banks of the United States.

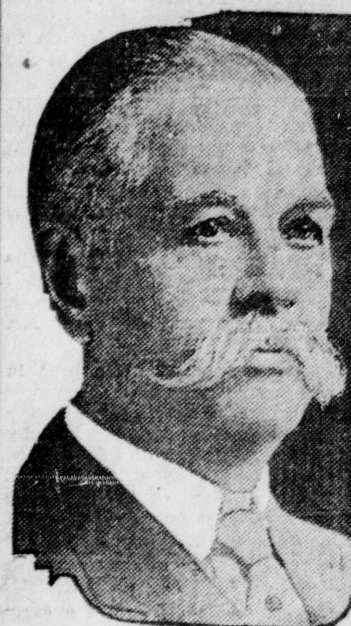

Government figures on capital investment show the following returns: Mining, 182 per cent; manufacturing, 14 per cent; insurance, 11 per cent; banks, 6 3/4 per cent; railroads, 3 3/4 per cent.

Business interests in the West, according to the National Banker, are slowly realizing that conditions surrounding the mining industry have changed so favorably during the past ten or fifteen years that mining today is the greatest fortune-making industry in the world.

G. A. R. CHIEF

John B. Inman, of Springfield, Ill., national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, who today addressed a Memorial day message to the American people.

ONLY 110,000
OF UNION ARMY
NOW SURVIVING

By JOHN B. INMAN
Commander-in-chief of G. A. R.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 31.—Our great national funeral day comes today with its intermingled sorrow and joy and regret that so many of our comrades have reached the river's brink and have crossed over.

But there is rejoicing for us, too, in that their achievements stand out in bold relief on the escutcheon of our country's greatness where flowers may possibly be strewn upon the waters in remembrance of those comrades who sleep beneath the sad sea waves.

It appears to me, as commander-in-chief of the great Grand Army of the Republic, that we should be proud and happy to co-operate with other ex-soldier societies, but not forgetting that the men of the 60's made the day possible.

We feel a deep sense of gratitude to our younger compatriots who are only too glad to concede leadership to "us boys" of the 60's.

There are but 110,000 survivors of the Union army of the Civil war. Our average age is 83, and we are crossing the Great Divide at the rate of nearly 20,000 per year.

Not until over the last comrades have been pronounced those pathetic words, "Taps are sounded, lights are out, the soldier sleeps," shall come the greatest glory of the Grand Army of the Republic.

I mean no disrespect to any comrade of any war when I say we had no predecessor nor will we have a successor.

We know the work we were set to do. We know the task we were given to perform, and we know we performed it.

We have taken our place in the history of this republic, and now as we shall go down through the valley of the shadows and out into the ever-lasting sunshine, we beseech as did they of old, "Let thy servants depart in peace!"

And may the principles for which they contended go down the ages, building for them a monument that shall span this intervening space which we call time, and rest on the towers of two great eternities, one that was, one that is to be.

Cotton Growers
Of Two States
Will Organize

BAKERSFIELD, May 29.—Permanent organization of the cotton ginners—cotton oil mill men and the compress operators of California and Arizona into an association, is planned for a meeting to be held in Los Angeles on Friday, June 25, as the result of a conference held in this city.

The purpose of the organization, stated Stanley Pratt, will be to bring about uniformity in methods and maintain higher standards. It is important to adopt uniform baleyard receipts as a matter of financing and also to standardize tags, bagging, weighing, storage, etc., it was said.

The ginners advised storage of cotton in gin yards during the present season as opposed to a central storage plan which had been advocated. It was said that better protection and more uniform insurance can be obtained by keeping the cotton in the local gin yards.

Oarsmen to See
Selves In Slow
Motion Pictures

SEATTLE, May 24.—University of Washington oarsmen will see themselves as oarsmen in the future.

Coach Rusty Callow has obtained a motion picture camera, and he takes pictures of his men in action.

When the films are developed, he runs them off for slow motion pictures, so the crew members may analyze their own faults of form and rowing style.

From now on, movies will form an important part of the work and study of the crewmen, Callow said.

MEMORIAL DAY

SERVICES ARE HELD IN BAPTIST CHURCH

Sedgwick Post Members,
Woman's Relief Corps,
And Others Are Present

Loving tributes to the heroic dead of America's wars, who paid the supreme sacrifice on the battlefields was given by Dr. Otto S. Russell, pastor of the First Baptist church, in a sermon delivered yesterday, at the regular Sunday morning services.

The services were attended by members of Sedgwick post, Grand Army of the Republic, and the Woman's Relief Corps, who, assembling at the G. A. R. hall on East Fourth street, and preceded by the Grand Army life and drum corps, marched to the church in closed formation.

Sermon in Part
Dr. Russell, taking his text from Exodus XII, 14, "This day shall be unto you for a memorial," said in part:

"This paragraph binds us back to one of the darkest tragedies of human history; the death of the first born in Egypt, when the avenging angel passed over the homes. Every Jewish home that had the dash of blood on the doorpost escaped. From that terrible night, the Jews have kept the memorial of their deliverance in a celebration called the 'Pass-over.' This is a yearly reminder to them of a remarkable deliverance of their people. All nations have memorials of some kind, marking victory, escape, interposition of Providence, or peculiar blessings received. Christmas is a memorial to Jesus, the world deliverer. Thanksgiving is a memorial of gratitude, and an occasion for homecoming. Independence day is a memorial of defiance and liberty, and our Memorial day hold a unique place in our hearts because of departed heroes and loved ones.

"This day has grown out of service rendered by those men before us today and their comrades. A day for decorating graves of these departed ones, yet not for those who have come, for every true home contributes to our national welfare and glory.

"We find occasion for expression of noble principle in our national life. The principle of that Great One who lived and demonstrated what He declared, 'not to be ministered unto, but to minister.' Such ministry cannot be destroyed, for it is born of the eternal. In this we find our American valor, not northern valor, nor southern valor, but American valor, such as animated Washington and men of his day, Lincoln and men of his day, indeed great men of every day in the history of our national existence. The value of principle must be maintained in our commercial life, where we find it is better to be merciful than demand justice, and again in our religious life, which is but a demonstration of our Christian profession.

"On these days we learn again to appreciate the price of liberty and privilege. Growing used to things, we are likely to forget their cost. The coral reef, when islands lift their fringed palms in air, but every coral island bespeaks the life of builders; nor is this less true of blessings of mankind. Men have struggled for the liberty and privilege we possess today from the time of Adam's fall. In all ages of all nations of the past to the days of the Pilgrim Fathers and the inception of our own nation, when famished troops threw their battle-line against the countless hordes of kings, braved wintry climes, existing on scanty returns from New England's fields, went forth, leaving bloody footprints in the snow to humble the towering pride of monarchs and set forth the sacred Ark of America, containing our oracles—a dangerous defiance and a constitution vouchsafing liberty and privileges to all those who gather under the protecting folds of the stars and stripes.

In Days of Civil War
"Again in those days of the Civil war, when problems arose as to the states' rights and liberties and privileges of mankind, which ushered in the fiercest battles of the world's history; when men marched down from the north and men from the south and brother met brother on many a bloody battlefield. It might be interesting today to note some of these battles, and epochal moments of intense feeling, when everything seemed to be in the balance and the tide might be turned to either direction any moment, and when the Merrimac and Monitor met in deadly conflict, and the president called his cabinet, being so

Value of Principle
"We may learn here at this time the value of principle, as expressed in the homes from which we have come, for every true home contributes to our national welfare and glory.

HARDING MEMORIAL CORNERSTONE LAID

were there to see the first actual step for a national memorial in history.

Father is Present.

Dr. George T. Harding, 84-year-old father of the former president, sat in a place of honor on the platform. He paid closest attention to the eulogies which flowed from the lips of speakers.

Harding was extolled as a president who, taking over the government at one of the most critical periods in history, solved perplexing problems of statecraft in a manner in which there are few parallels in history.

Treaties which resulted from the Washington arms conference will "forever keep alive the memory of President Harding," declared Mr. Daves.

Records and souvenirs placed in the cornerstone included a copy of the Saturday Evening Post, which was being read to Mr. Harding by Mrs. Harding in the San Francisco hotel room when he died. Samuel C. Bayne, author of the article which was furnishing the president much amusement, presented the copy.

Other Articles in Box.

Other mementoes included a copy of the centennial edition of the Marion Daily Star, which Mr. Harding sold while he was president; the famous printer's rule which the president carried; copies of speeches made on his Alaskan trip; his Masonic lambkin apron and other records of his Masonic career and copies of the Declaration of Independence and the U. S. constitution.

Stage and Screen

Mae Murray and Francis X. Bushman in a scene from "The Masked Bride," picture now showing at the West Coast-Walker theater.

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

Few photoplays of recent years have featured a story so rich in characterization and human interest, so gripping in the dramatic sweep of its action and so poignant in its terrific emotional appeal as "The Rainmaker," a powerful love-drama of a dual generation, based on Gerald Beaumont's Red Book magazine serial, "Heavenbent."

"The Rainmaker" will be the feature picture when the new Yost Broadway theater is opened Wednesday.

There is something infinitely pathetic, yet stirringly inspiring about the two principal characters—one, a happy-go-lucky jockey, the other, a cheap dance hall girl—who strive to overcome a bad start in life, fight desperately against the evil influences surrounding them, are caught in a whirl of plague and pestilence, fire and flood, but succeed in crashing through, regenerated in spirit, happy in their love for each other.

As played by William Collier Jr. and Georgia Hale, these characters take on a semblance of reality, a striking life-likeness, that makes one forget for the moment that they are but flickering shadows on the silver screen. No less complete and satisfying is the performance contributed by Ernest Torrence as Mike, the hard-faced, kind hearted bartender and dance hall proprietor.

WEST COAST-WALKER

The "Masked Bride," the current attraction at the W. C. W. theater, is great entertainment. It's got a great star, a celebrated supporting cast, a first-rate director and a woe of a story.

The cast is a whiz-bang. Mae Murray, fresh from her great triumph in "The Merry Widow," one of screendom's most loved personalities, plays the little role with considerable charm, gusto and the understanding that has marked all her outstanding performances. And such seasoned favorites as Francis X. Bushman, who was one of the first and most popular stars of film-dom and who is now distinguishing himself as Messala in "Ben Hur," Roy D'Arcy, the dashing, fascinating, villainous Crown Prince of "The Merry Widow," Lawford Davidson, English stage star; Pauline Neff, Basil Rathbone, Chester Conklin and Fred Warren bring the vivid characters to life in a compelling, realistic fashion.

The Fanchon and Marco "Dolly Gill Idea," featuring Mlle. Dolly Gill, late of the Folies Bergere, Paris, and Zimmermann and Grandville, Swiss Yodelers, is a fine stage presentation.

YOST THEATER

One of the best star vehicles in which Leatrice Joy has been seen this season is "Made for Love," a story of ancient and modern Egypt which was shown with great success at the Yost theater last night. The picture was splendidly produced, many of the sets, especially the Pharaoh sequence, being ornate and massive. The star, as well as Edmund Burns, Bertram Grassby and Ethel Wales, the featured players, were exceptionally fine in their portrayals.

The story deals with the adventures of an American couple in Egypt, who find the rich tomb of the royal lovers, which is being rifled by an unscrupulous Egyptian prince. The action takes the spectator back to the court of Pharaoh where the foundation of the modern sequence is laid in the poisoning by Pharaoh of his brother and the princess whom Pharaoh had chosen for his bride, because they loved each other. The scenes are highly dramatic and there are thrills aplenty in the action. The picture is well worth seeing, because of its beauty, novelty and timeliness.

WEST END THEATER

"Rainbow Riley," picture featuring Johnny Hines and showing at the West End theater tonight, has to do with Johnny's role as a cub reporter who is sent to the Kentucky mountains to report a feud. Instead of finding just a little bit of excitement, he runs plumb into a mess of trouble. His first move is to fall in love with the schoolteacher-sweetheart of Tilden McFields, the killer of the mountains and the leader of the Ripper clan. That means trouble from the start, and Johnny never gets his neck out of the noose until he has to overcome the entire mountain community with the aid of government troops. He does it to the queen's taste, and in the accomplishment thereof he goes through a series of escapes that are fraught with danger, laughs, thrills and dynamic action. It isn't the story so much as it is Hines and the brand of clever gags he uses to get out of his precarious situations that makes the film so fine. Always the Johnny Hines insanity, the Hines rapid-fire action, and the downright button-busting fun that he promulgates.

Teague, which telegram was given wide publicity in the campaign and contributed materially to the Republican majority in California, and "Whereas, the development as authorized by such legislation, has since frequently been approved and indorsed by the president and has been approved by the secretary of the interior and by the secretary of commerce and its financial features have been approved by the secretary of the treasury, and "Whereas, the rank and file of the Republican party has repeatedly expressed its overwhelming support of this development, and "Whereas, the progress of the legislation in the house of representatives is being delayed and hindered by obstructive tactics, largely at the instigation of one Democratic congressman, who hopes by delay to add to his prestige and to aid his candidacy for U. S. senator from Arizona at the fall election, and "Whereas, Republican voters and all citizens generally throughout the southwest bitterly resent such action and are insistent that immediate action to have this bill passed in this session of congress. Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Republican party of Southern California here assembled in informal conference, that we denounce and protest against any concerned as to the issue. Those were the days when some of your comrades made the supreme sacrifice on the battlefield. Later your own sons took up the torch and carried on in the great world war. Here they made the grab game to ceased among nations, preserved again the principles of democracy and saved our institutions and homes.

Honor Spirit of Heroism

"To honor the spirit of heroism and courage. This is where the American spirit ever demonstrates itself. During the Spanish-American war, a Spanish prisoner said: 'When we fired a volley, instead of falling back, the Americans came forward. That is not the way to fight to come closer at every volley.' When one asked him, 'Did the Americans fight well?' he replied, 'They tried to catch us with their hands.'"

"In a battle during the Civil war, when the Confederates were driving back the federals, a federal officer dropped wounded. One of his men stopped at the risk of his own life, put his arms around the officer to carry him from the field, and 50 Confederate muskets were aimed at the young man, picking up the officer. But the Confederate captain shouted: 'Halt, don't fire; that fellow is too brave to shoot.' And as the federal officer, held up by the private soldier, went slowly off the field, the Confederates gave three cheers to the brave private; and just before they disappeared behind a barn, both wounded officer and private lifted their caps in gratitude. Today our privilege is to honor the spirit of courage in the old soldier who honored such in the man who faced him with musket on the battlefield."

Spirit of Sympathy

"To keep alive the spirit of sympathy, tenderness and forgiveness. How significant—during the battle of Gettysburg, when a company of artillery ceased firing to let the battery cool, a song sparrow perched on one of the smoking guns and began to sing a song of good will to men."

"How beautifully that spirit was demonstrated recently in two old soldiers, one of the blue, and one of the grey, who met at the Bloody Angle and learned that years ago they met at this same place in deadly conflict, each one endeavoring to destroy the other. Now they take each other in arms and in the spirit of tenderness sob out their forgiveness. Beautiful it is today in many places to see the men who wore the blue and men who wore the grey leaning on each other's arms, scatter their flowers and mingle their tears over the graves of departed comrades. Under the roses the blue, under the lilies the grey."

"To appreciate the value of peace. War costs. It costs too much money. Frightful is the cost of the wars of the earth. It costs too much anguish and heartache. Those scenes are fresh of leaving home and anxious hearts waiting there. It costs too much of the flower and chivalry of nations."

The sermon closed with reciting a war poem, "The Baltimore Boys."

further delay in the passage of this important and necessary legislation and at the kind of tactics by and the ground upon which it is being hindered in the house, and at the placing of considerations of anticipation of personal advantage in an Arizona senatorial contest above the protection of the property of tens of thousands of American citizens and the advancement of the great section dependent upon the speedy development of the Colorado river, and most respectfully urge upon the president that he marshal all of the forces of the Republican party to put a stop to any further delay in the consideration of the pending legislation, and to bring about its prompt and immediate enactment at the present session of congress."

IVANHOE—Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

HE YEOMEN AT ONCE KNEELED TO THE GROUND. LOCKSLEY, "CALL ME NO LONGER LOCKSLEY, MY LIEGE. I AM ROBIN HOOD OF SHERWOOD FOREST. AND SO IT WAS INDEED. AND WHILE THEY WERE TALKING, AND FRIAR TUCK MAKING MERRY WITH THE KING, IVANHOE APPEARED ON THE SCENE WITH GURTH.

IVANHOE AND THE KING MADE THEIR WAY TO CONINGSBURGH. WHERE AT THE FUNERAL FEAST, RICHARD REMINDED CEDRIC OF HIS BOON AND NAMED IT. FORGIVENESS OF IVANHOE. CEDRIC GRANTED IT. "BUT ROWENA MUST MOURN TWO YEARS BEFORE SHE MARRIES YOU. THE GHOST OF ATHELSTANE WOULD STAND BEFORE US IF WE DISHONORED HIS MEMORY."

VALDEMAR FITZURSE! EXCLAIMED THE BLACK KNIGHT. "WHAT COULD URGE ONE OF MY RANK TO SO FOUL AN UNDERTAKING?" "REVENGE," REPLIED THE OTHER. "THY FATHER'S SON SET ME ON THIS DEED." THE BLACK KNIGHT SEEMED HORROR-STRUCK. BUT HE MADE FITZURSE LEAVE ENGLAND IMMEDIATELY AND ASKED LOCKSLEY TO PROVIDE HIM A HORSE.

UT THAT I JUDGE I LISTEN TO A VOICE WHOSE BEST MUST NOT BE DISPUTED," SAID LOCKSLEY. "WOULD SEND A SWIFT AFTER THAT SKULKING VIL-LAIN." "THOU SPEAKST AN ENGLISH HEART, LOCKSLEY," SAID THE BLACK KNIGHT. "WELL DOST THOU OBEY MY BEHEST. I AM RICHARD OF ENGLAND."

The WOMAN'S DAY

Moods and Rouge
Perfumes to match moods have been ballyhooed for some time, much to the disgust of the majority of women, whose nearest approach to mood-matching perfumes is the clinging odor of fresh baked bread to match the baking mood, or vinegar-in-the-hair to match the pickling mood. Now come the experts to say that only a low, common piece of femininity uses one shade of powder and rouge for all occasions. Different moods and emotions are decreed. Apple fritters!

More Matching Stuff!
And that above isn't the half of it, dearie. Any truly chic woman with verve and subtlety must wear complexions to match wall colors in ballroom or dining salon. Thus, the truly smart hostess, in issuing invitations to a dance, will inform that it is to be in the blue ballroom or cream or jade, so that her finer sensibilities will not be jarred by an influx of complexions meant for only red or yellow rooms.

And Even at Home!
And even in the bosom of her own home, the true helpmeet will be careful never to appear at the breakfast table in complexion that does not completely harmonize with the orange dishes and the cretonnes of the breakfast room.

Swear for Us!
Such balderdash is unto me the proverbial red rag. Of course it's said in the name of commerce—of course we know the beauty mongers hope to reap in golden shekels while the woman pays and pays for "emotion-matching face powder"—but even so, crass commercialism wouldn't even dare try to get away with such tommyrot if there wasn't a market for it, and if some women with nothing but olive branches for brains didn't go pitter-patter to the nearest beauty shop for "mood-matching rouge."

Hair and Nerves
Bobbed hair is making neurotics of American women, according to another hairdresser out of a job in this era of shorn scalps. The lady explains that women are constantly fussing with their short locks until a great national habit of hair arranging is so firmly fixed that women are unconscious that their fingers are straying through their hair. Then she lets loose more propaganda versus short hair and favors the return of the long by saying "women got this terrible nervous habit in the attempt to improve the untidy, unkempt, straggly short hair." Rubbish! Long hair was and is a more untidy than short hair as cabbages are bigger than banana seeds!

Novel Bridal Shower
A novel manner of presenting shower gifts is to dress up a sewing room dummy in garish dress and bonnet and hang the various packages upon her, around her neck, about her waist, her ankles, her arms. Especially effective if it is a kitchen shower, and saucers and skillets can dingle-dangle from the lady's belt.

Homes
Is your home in the majority class? Interesting figures say 60 per cent of American homes have telephones and autos; 79 per cent, electricity; 74 per cent, gas; 70 per cent, electric irons; 59 per cent, gas heaters; 47 per cent, vacuum cleaners; and 28 per cent, washing machines. Some change in today's home and that of yesterday's woman!

"Happy Ever After!"
And so the romance of Elin Mackay, rich girl, and Irving Berlin, rich boy risen from the Ghetto, continues to write on just like the old fairy tales. Irate Papa Mackay, 'tis said, will probably be appeased by the arrival of grandchild in the summer, and they all will live happy ever after!

OLD-FASHIONED IDEA
The quilted coat is not confined to silk and to light fabrics, but is seen in kasha and rep as well. Usually the quilting is done in the same tone as the material, though a contrast, or gold or silver traceries are also seen.

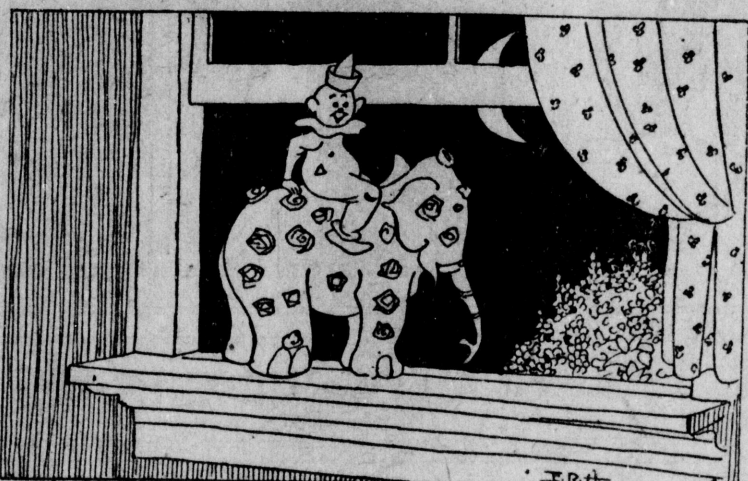

ADD CONCEIT
Rhinstone pins in quaint animal shapes are liked for hats and scarfs.

QUIET YOUR NERVES.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 1—INCO, THE ELEPHANT, RUNS AWAY

The door into the bedroom where the Twins slept in little white beds, was held open by a wonderful stop.

This door-stop was an elephant, a beautiful elephant made of china as white and smooth as satin. There is nothing unusual about an elephant, or even about a china elephant, but when I tell you that this elephant had bunches of roses all over him, even down his trunk, painted on tight, you may say what other people before you have said—that does not completely harmonize with the orange dishes and the cretonnes of the breakfast room.

But there he was, keeping guard at his post of duty day in and day out, night in and night out, as rosy as a June morning. It never occurred to him to be ashamed of his decorations. To add to his oddness his name was Inco.

"Inco" was short for "Inconsistent" for the Twins' father had said he was inconsistent all over. First, because a door-stop should be made of iron instead of china and second because it would have looked more natural to have peanuts painted on him instead of roses. There were several other reasons for the name, but that is not in the story.

Inco stood patiently beside his door, guarding it with all his twelve inches of might and main. He stood there, eyes gazing at the floor, his trunk half raised to show it off to advantage, his tail—but, oh my dears! I almost forgot—he had no tail at all. Simply, absolutely, positively none.

He never mixed with the other animals in the Twins' bedroom. The rabbits and hens and guinea pigs and ducks on the wallpaper stood in the greatest awe of him. The butterflies and dicky-birds on the furniture did their best to attract his attention by fluttering

Movie-Ana

NEW YORK, May 31.—They call her "Old Mary."

For 12 years she has been waiting table at the First National studios here. She is an institution. Just how she has escaped being signed up for extra or character roles no one seems to know. Without a touch of make-up she suggests better than most players the old-time farm servant, the veteran boarding house keeper, or the kindly, hard-worked old lady. Yet here she is in her fashioned, neat gingham, going from table to table where sit the famous mimes in their costly masquerades—for all the world like a fantastic scene from whimsical film play.

"Old Mary" has no illusions about "stars." Nor does she make obeisance before them. Quite the contrary. She is essentially maternal and her sympathies and attentions go to the young newcomers. The million-dollar faces may open with protests and demands for immediate attention, but "Old Mary" goes about in her own sweet way. She is not to be awed. She's been at it too long.

The First National plant stands on the site of the old Biograph studio, of fragrant memory. One of the few unscarred survivors of the Biograph days is Jack Mulhall. This is Mulhall's home neighborhood. As a Bronx lad he would linger just outside the lot hoping to get a peep at what was going on, just as many youngsters do today.

Time dispelled the awe in which he had once placed and one day he took courage in hand and asked for a job as an extra. To his amazement he got it. But he had to brush up on acting and spent some time in a dramatic school thereafter. He's working there now with their wings in a dozen different ways, but in vain.

He kept his eyes steadfastly down, Inco did. It is quite a responsibility, being a watchman.

Well, sir, time went on and went on and after a while the Twins got so that they never noticed poor Inco at all. Try it yourself if you don't believe me. You know a picture is on a wall at a certain place, but you don't look at it every time you go into that room, do you? That's the way it was with the china elephant.

Where at first the Twins would pat him when they passed, or even get down on the floor and play with him, and put things on his back to ride, now they never seemed to have a minute for a word. They never wondered any more even why he had big roses painted on.

Perhaps that was one reason why the poor thing never raised his eyes. And perhaps that is the reason he did what he did, for something unusual certainly happened.

I forgot to tell you that Inco had one friend. That was Flops, the clown. You just knew they loved each other without being told why. Flops always went to sleep with his face turned toward the door and his arms stretched out. And at night Inco's eyes lifted themselves a bit, just enough to observe what went on on the shelf.

One night the Twins had gone to bed and to sleep. Suddenly something wakened Nick and he reached out to turn on the little night lamp. But there was no need. The moon was out and there on the window-sill stood Inco. On his back was Flops the clown.

Before Nick could waken Nancy, Inco had given a jump out into the night and was gone!

HOLLYWOOD, May 31.—Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, producer and director, who has been an important figure in the picture world for 30 years, wants the world to know that he isn't an old man.

The commodore, who came by the title as skipper of the celebrated New York Yacht club, bristles at the constant, if admiring, references to his veteranism in movies. He feels that the public visioning him as a film Methuselah. As a matter of fact, Blackton is 49, having entered the infant screen industry at the age of 19, when, as a sketch artist for the N. Y. World, a meeting with Thomas Edison determined his career. One may be long in the movies and still be in his prime in years, both of which Commodore Blackton is.

From the midst of Hollywood's aleak and wisecracking modernity rises the ritualistic chant of an ancient people scarcely touched by "civilized" custom. On the ranch of Harry Carey, within the city limits, live a few score Navajo Indian employees.

Whenever there is birth, death, marriage or sickness among them, the presence of doctor or priest may be tolerated, but always in addition to such service there is the native rite. It is one of the film town's strange anachronisms. A folk aloof, peering down from another era on the alien antics of the movie makers.

Menus for the Family

By SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Grape fruit, cereal cooked with dates, thin cream, broiled and salt mackerel, delicate muffins, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked macaroni and tomatoes, toasted muffins, rhubarb gelatin with whipped cream, caramel cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Broiled fish steaks, potatoes in parsley butter, creamed carrots and peas, cherry salad, lemon meringue pie, graham bread, milk, coffee.

The breakfast menu suggested takes care of juniors under school age as well as adults. Small "run arounds" should be served orange juice, the cereal suggested with cream, toast and milk.

Cherry salad is rather out of the ordinary and while it may be a bit fussy to make it's really most delicious.

Cherry Salad

One cup white cherries, 1 package Neufchatel cheese, 1 tablespoon finely chopped English walnuts, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon cream.

Wash and dry cherries and remove stones. Chill. Combine cheese, nuts, lemon juice and cream and work with a fork until perfectly blended. Full cherries with cheese mixture and serve on hearts of lettuce with French dressing.

Sections of grape fruit can be added. If dark red cherries are used the contrasting color of the grapefruit makes an unusually pretty salad. Let grape fruit stand in sugar for at least an hour before combining with the cherries. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

The hat with the matching scarf is a bet of bluebell taffeta heavily embroidered in shades of rose. The narrow scarf is lined with rose georgette, piped at the edges and embroidered as the hat.

Queer Quirks of NATURE.

THIS IS THE LOVE SEASON FOR THE LOWLY TOAD

By ARTHUR N. PACK
President, The American Nature Association

The toad here pictured is sending forth that lethal musk trill which so commonly greets us from the flooded meadows of our northern states in late April or May, the love season of the toad and of many of our lowly friends. Digging himself out from the cavity in the soft earth or garden or hillside where he hid himself for the winter, the toad hops the nearest pool and in the shallow water, or floating, if it be deeper, he swells his elastic throat into a big bubble and sends forth on the evening air the call which tells us that spring has fairly arrived.

To the lady toad, it is the wooing call, and soon the mating is on. Several thousand eggs are laid by each female, and within a few days these hatch into tiny black tadpoles.

BEAUTY CHATS

WELL DEVELOPED ARMS
If a woman is slightly overweight or is gaining it will show first on the upper part of her arm. The muscles will become flabby, the arm will seem to flatten out against the side and its shapeliness will gradually disappear. If this is what is happening to you, you must either develop your arms so well that they will keep their good shape in spite of increasing flesh, or you must diet so that they thin down again.

Now one of the best tests of the muscular development of your arm and also one of the best ways of developing these muscles, is the child's game of chinning himself. You can do this at home easily without any elaborate apparatus if you will get a pole strong enough to hold your weight, and place it from, say, the foot of your bed to the window sill or the top of a chest of drawers, or at any height where you can reach it when sitting on the floor.

The best way to begin is to sit with your knees drawn up to your chest, the soles of the feet flat on the floor. Draw yourself up so your chin rests above the pole, letting your arms take as much weight as possible, and all of it if possible. You will probably find this very difficult at first, but as you strengthen the arms, and muscles across the back and chest, you will gradually make the pole without any help from the feet; in fact you should be able to do it with the arms only and with your legs extended flat along the floor. I can guarantee that if you do this exercise faithfully every day you will have well rounded, firm muscled arms. Meantime, if they are unsightly, cover them up with sleeves, or have your short sleeves cut with a deep V, pointing up along the arm towards the shoulder. This gives an effect of slenderness that is very deceptive for it actually covers up the ugly flesh yet seems to leave the arm bare.

but continue with the tonic anyway, for your hair has improved through it, and that means more vitality and therefore less chance of increasing greyness.

take on the adult form. Dangers in many forms still beset the helpless creatures, and nature's wisdom in providing that the mother toad lay myriad eggs is demonstrated. And, so on through life daily hazards are on the lot of the toad, yet in spite of all he may live for many years, and during all this time he is a friend to man, for insects in great variety, and in numbers that defy computation, form his daily fare. A few toads in the garden are worth dollars to the gardener.

Many legends and superstitions concerning the toad have come down to us from the past. Boys formerly believed that the handling of a toad caused warts, and that they could be cured only by the practice of certain rigid formulas.

Some thought them poison, and the toad is indeed furnished with a secretion which is very distasteful to dogs and other animals, and which has often been the means of saving its life.

YANKS, REDS WORRY MAJOR LEAGUE RIVALS

BILLY EVANS Says

TIMELY BATTERS

The real value of a player's batting average is largely determined by his ability to drive in runs in a pinch.

Champion batters are not always the best in the big crisis. In this respect Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals is the exception. Not only did he lead the National league in batting last season but also in runs batted in as well.

In the American league I can think of no more timely batsman than Earl Sheely of the Chicago White Sox. In a pinch he is a more dangerous batsman than many with a better mark. Bob Meusel is equally capable.

American league pitchers have a keen respect for the batting prowess of Sheely and Meusel with runners on the bases.

MOST VALUABLE ARM

Who has the best throwing arm among the outfielders in the American league was a question recently put to me.

Without much hesitation I would say that Bob Meusel of the New York Yankees had the most valuable arm.

It is just possible there might be one or two outfielders who can throw the ball a greater distance but I doubt it. Meusel not only gets great distance but remarkable accuracy in his throws. He is a right-hander.

Speaking of left-handed throwers it would be difficult to overlook the arm of Tris Speaker, veteran outfielder of the Cleveland Indians.

Speaker still gets great distance and uncanny accuracy to his throws.

TOUGH BREAKS

When things break badly for a ball club there seems to be no end of the hard luck that can camp on its trail.

Handicapped almost from the very start of the season by illness and injuries, the St. Louis Browns have unearthed about every possible way there is to lose ball games.

No member of the St. Louis pitching staff has been more unfortunate in this respect than Milt Gaston, the sterling right-hander.

No hurler in the American league has more stuff, yet he has been unable to win consistently. I have seen Gaston lose at least four games since the opening of the season that could have just as easily gone into the won column had Dame Fortune chose to smile on him.

A dropped fly ball that should have been caught, a badly bounding grounder that should have been stopped, yet hopped over the infielder's head for a base hit, failure to touch a base and a wild heave are four ways I have seen games tossed away for Gaston.

HORNSBY'S VOW

"Send me back to the Coast league; I would rather play there anyway."

Since Southpaw Walter Mails first came to the majors, that has been his battle cry. The big noise in the Coast league, he never seemed to care just how he fared in the big leagues.

This spring Rogers Hornsby told Mails the Coast league was scratched.

"If you don't deliver for me, Syracuse is your next stop," is the way Hornsby put it up to Mails. He figured removing the Coast league berth as a possibility would help Mails take the big show seriously.

It didn't and Hornsby made good his threat. Mails is now with Syracuse.

NATURAL BATSMAN

Al Simmons of the Philadelphia Athletics is one of the best natural batsmen in baseball today. In his second year in the majors he averaged .336, concrete proof of his ability.

Despite a stance and style contrary to all baseball conventions, Simmons is one of the most feared hitters in the league. Prone to pull away badly from the plate, he manages to get 'em safe.

Due to his habit of pulling, Simmons last year was regarded as a dead left-field hitter. He has over come that habit and now hits to all fields.

In one game, I saw him twice hit through the spot vacated by the second baseman who was covering.

This greatly improves his team value, since he is much harder to play.

Piping 'Em Off

Yesterday's Hero—Bob Meusel, Yankee's outfielder, whose steal of home and triple were factors in the 9 to 3 defeat of the Athletics.

Although out, 14 to 10, the White Sox bunched their blows and beat the Tigers, 6 to 3.

Every Brooklyn player got at least one hit in a game which the Robins took from Boston, 8 to 2.

Pitcher Ruffing hit a Washington batter in the 11th inning when the bases were loaded and Boston lost 4 to 3.

Hornsby's homer and Bottomley's triple, each coming with men on base, gave the Cards a 5 to 2 victory over Chicago.

A single, two triples and a double in the third gave the Pirates enough runs to defeat Cincinnati, 4 to 3.

The Browns won their fourth straight, winning from Cleveland, 3 to 1, when Zachary let down the Indians with six hits.

AMERICA'S BEST TO DEFEND WALKER CUP

SANTA ANA INDOOR BASEBALL RACE TIGHTENS; FOUR CLUBS NOW FIGHTING FOR TOP SPOT

Instead of resulting in a runaway race between two clubs, as some followers of the popular evening sport had feared, the tightest kind of a struggle has developed for the championship of the Santa Ana Indoor Baseball league which turns into its sixth week of play at Lincoln park tomorrow night with a game between the Arnold Peek market and Fluor Construction company aggregations.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

Housewives in the Bronx are forced to plan later dinners during the summer than are housewives in Harlem—that is, if you grant that the husbands from those two sections are the ones who patronize, respectively, the ball games played at the Yankee stadium and at the Polo grounds.

There is no doubt that the Giants play their games on an average of from 15 to 30 minutes more quickly than do the Yankees, and the same holds true for all of the National league clubs as compared with the teams in the junior circuit.

Probably the reason for the lack of speed in the American league is that the umpires work under different instructions than those handed out by President Heydler in the National league. At any rate the teams are given a longer period to make a change in pitchers and the hurlers themselves are allowed more latitude with the clock.

The club which is the worst offender undoubtedly is Detroit, for the Tigers seldom finish a game in less than two hours. Ty Cobb, the perennial manager, is largely responsible for this. His willingness to argue on every debatable point and his frequent manipulation of pitchers and pinch hitters consumes many minutes every game, and the fans seem to resent the dilatory tactics.

The Tigers recently played a four-game series here in which 11 of the games took more than two hours and 15 minutes to complete and one went three hours and seven minutes. In their first 20 games this year the Tigers needed more than two hours in 14 encounters. The Chicago White Sox, probably the speediest team in the American league, used up more than two hours in only six games and two of those were with the

Every team in the circuit already has suffered at least one defeat and since the season has nine weeks more to go it is conceivable that even the cellar-clinging Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company outfit might get going and climb to the top perch.

Both the Tienan Typewriters and the Blauer Grocers, hot favorites in the early season, were knocked off last week. Most of the "smart money" now is being placed on the Lee Fountain squad, which has won its last three starts against topnotch clubs. If Jimmy Mansfield, the celebrated moundman of the league, remains with the club, the Fountains seem almost a cinch to cop the pennant.

There will be no game at Lincoln field tonight. The Blauers were scheduled to mix with the Telephone company but on account of this being Memorial Day, the contest has been postponed until some later date.

Peek's market, now in the thick of the title hunt because of its victory over the Tienans last week, goes against the Fluors in the week's opener tomorrow.

Mansfield will be seen in action here again Wednesday when Lee's Fountain plays the Southern Counties Gas company. The Excelsior Creamery company and the Tienan Typewriter company clash Thursday.

League standings follow:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Tienan Typewriters	4	1	.800
F. C. Blauer Grocery	4	1	.800
Lee's Fountain	4	1	.800
Excelsior Creamery	3	2	.600
So. Counties Gas Co.	3	2	.600
Arnold Peek Market	2	3	.400
Fluor Construction Co.	1	4	.200
Pac. Tel. and Tel. Co.	0	5	.000

Tigers.

From the standpoint of good business procedure, it would seem that the American league magnates would petition Ban Johnson to order his umpires to speed up the games. Even a slugfest can be played in comparatively short time if both clubs are on their toes and are forced to play without unnecessary interruption. One of the speediest games the Yanks have played this year was a 13 to 9 affair with Cleveland. The rain of base hits kept the fans interested, because between each hit the pitchers didn't toss three or four throws to first.

Of course, the winning team is the one that draws the crowd.

Uncle Sam will trot out what is generally conceded to be the greatest group of amateur golfers this country has ever turned loose in defense of the famous Walker cup on the historic St. Andrews course, Wednesday and Thursday.

Gardner, Jones, Oulmet, Guilford, Sweetser, Von Elm, MacKenzie and Gunn—you might call them a team of champions' by stretching a point or two. For in the group are five national amateur title holders of some time or other and two former national open kings. Two others, Von Elm and Gunn, were good enough to reach the finals in the amateur classic in 1924 and 1925, respectively.

All but Von Elm, Gunn, and MacKenzie have played on British links before. And by the time the Walker cup battle gets under way, the three strangers will have garnered a little experience by virtue of having participated in the annual British amateur event.

Against the American team will be pitted England's best amateurs. And, according to reports, it will be the strongest outfit the Britons have sent forth to battle for the trophy in some seasons.

In Tolley, Holderness and Wethered, Capt. Bob Gardner and his mates are certain to encounter some classy opposition, with Hazlett and Harris likewise standing out in the Johnny Bull line-up.

The famous St. Andrews layout is said to be easy for the long ball hitters of today. It has huge greens that afford rather sure landing spots. But over the 18 holes are strewn 148 bunkers—traps likely to cause the visiting Americans plenty of trouble, especially at the start.

The American team will be defending the celebrated cup for the fifth time.

In Mexico the men speak first when passing a woman acquaintance in the street.

MANSFIELD'S CONQUERORS PLAY LEGION HERE FRIDAY; C. OF C. GOES TO LAGUNA

"Speed" Walker, Anaheim's premier submariner who was good enough to outpitch Jimmy Mansfield last week, will be the next high class indoor baseball twirler to be seen in action at Lincoln field.

Walker will lead the Anaheim All-Stars, contenders for the Orange County league championship, against "Colonel" Berry's Santa Ana American Legion squad Friday night in the feature of the second night's games in this fast circuit.

Santa Ana's other representative, the Chamber of Commerce, travels to Laguna Beach for its second contest. Laguna Beach, also, has a pitcher of merit in Al Bushman who

PERINICH WINS GYM MEET FOR SUTTERS' CLUB

Bill Perinich, single handed, won the gymnasium contest of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. Pioneer league last Saturday for his club, the Sutters of the Spurgeon Memorial church, when he took 6 points by placing first in the rope climb and the snap under bar.

The Sutter club is in the Pioneer B division of younger boys and that makes his feat all the more remarkable.

Points won by clubs were as follows: Spurgeon Memorial Sutters 6; Wintersburg 5; First Baptist Ashmoors 2; Richland avenue M. E. Cubs 3; First Congregational Pathfinders 3; First Methodist Tigers 2; United Brethren Carsons 2. The results:

Traveling rings—Greffe (A) won; Baker (W) second; Higashi (P) third.

Rope climb—Perinich (S) won; Underwood (Cubs) second; Higashi (P) third. Time: 14 seconds.

Ring vaulting—Moore (W) won; Lindsay (T) second; Garlock (Cubs) third. Distance: 7 feet.

Snap under bar—Perinich (S) won; Paul (C) second; Higashi (P) third. Distance: 5 feet.

SPURGEONS VIRTUALLY CINCH INDOOR LEAGUE TITLE

With but one more round to be played, the championship of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. Pioneer A Baseball league today apparently had been clinched by the Spurgeons of the Spurgeon Memorial church.

As a result of the week-end frays on the "Y" playground, the Spurgeons gained the top of the league, having been defeated only once this season. Their unchallenged position resulted from a forfeit by the Tustin Presbyterian Grizzlies.

Closely pressing in second place, the Carson team of the United Brethren church defeated the United Presbyterian Apaches, 24 to 10, by a rally in the fifth inning that netted them 13 runs. Home runs were credited to Edwards and McGee.

HELEN BARELY WINS FROM FRENCH GIRL

PARIS, May 31.—Although the American tennis players triumphed by eight matches to three over the French in the three-day team play, completed Sunday, the result was not encouraging to the invaders.

Helen Wills looked tired yesterday when she defeated Mme. Simone Mathieu, 6-3, 6-4. At her Riviera best the American champion would not have lost a game to the French woman.

Elizabeth Ryan and Mary K. Browne were pressed more than the score would indicate in beating Miles, Cousin and Chamblat in the women's doubles, 6-1, 6-2.

The victories of Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey were the features of Sunday's play. Richards defeated Rene Lacoste, 7-5, 4-6, 8-6 while Kinsey knocked off Paul Peret 6-4, 5-7, 6-4.

TROJAN TRACK SQUAD WILL BE FETED IN L. A.

LOS ANGELES, May 31.—One of the greatest receptions ever given to an athletic team was planned today for the University of Southern California track and field squad, which won the I.C.A.A.A. championships at Cambridge, Mass., Saturday.

National intercollegiate champions for the second consecutive year, the team of 15 men will be cheered and feted when it returns.

Unlike last year, when the championships were clinched by Kenneth Grumbles when he won the low hurdles from an Eastern favorite, not a single man on the squad can be called a hero, with the possible exception of Captain Clarence ("Bud") Houser, who won the shot put and discus.

Other Southern California points were scored by Leighton Dye, who won the high hurdles; Grumbles, who won the low hurdles; Cliff Reynolds, who placed fourth in the high hurdles and fourth in the broad jump; Lee Barnes, who was second in the pole vault; Henry Coggeshall, who tied for second in the high jump; Joe Aleksi, fourth in the shot put and Bill Cook, fourth in the javelin.

The Trojans broke three I. C. A. A. A. records. Houser shattered the shot put and discus records and Grumbles lowered the mark for the low sticks.

The Southern team truly is proud of this latest achievement by its largest university. Virtually every member of the team is a Southern Californian.

"Smiling Dean" Cromwell, coach of the team, deserves a great deal of credit. Cromwell now has a record of training more record breaking sprint men than any other coach in the country, coaching the athletes who scored more points in the last Olympic games than any other college or club in the world and leading a team that won the national intercollegiate championships for two years in a row.

LEADERS PLAY GOOD BASEBALL CONSISTENTLY

Chief Opposition in June Expected to Come from Pirates and Athletics

NEW YORK, May 31.—The second month of the baseball season draws to its close today with the New York Yankees and the Cincinnati Reds impressive leaders in their respective circuits.

Although neither club is so far ahead of the players can make arrangements for cashing world's series checks, there is plenty of proof that the other teams are worried. The Yanks and the Reds are playing consistently good baseball despite setbacks sustained last week.

The chief opposition during June should come from the Pirates in the National league and from the Athletics in the American. Both of these clubs, after a miserable start, have settled down to pennant chasing in earnest and promise to make things interesting for forthcoming inter-sectional play in the two leagues.

In the American league there are four other teams with a percentage of .500 or better which promise enough trouble to prevent New York and Philadelphia from dashing madly toward the top. They are Washington, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago.

The Senators have had several disappointing setbacks lately and their pitching will have to improve before they can be considered as serious contenders, but the Washington fans should see their team finish up among the leaders. The Chicago Cubs, still holding second place in the National league, have begun to slip and are only half a game above the Pirates. The Cubs have been knocked off in three of their last seven games and should find difficulty in remaining near the top.

Despite the phenomenal hitting of Southworth and Lindstrom, the Giants seem unable to get a foothold. While they have no right to their present position in sixth place, they will have to improve considerably to advance into the first division.

SHORT SPORTS

ROME—Great Britain advanced into the semi-finals in the Davis cup play by defeating Italy, three matches to two. Spain will be met in the semi-finals.

NEW YORK—Pete Latzo, new water-wrestling champion, Ruby Goldstein and Phil McGraw will fight at the Polo Grounds July 8, according to Jimmy De Forest, matchmaker. The boxers' opponents were not named.

SAN FRANCISCO—Big "Tex" Boone, the Midwestern battling bumbler, were tied today for Pacific Coast league batting honors with an average of .401.

SAN FRANCISCO—A committee of 250 civic leaders has been named by Mayor James Rolph Jr. to direct general public participation in the festivities connected with the fourth annual Pacific Coast championship yachting regatta, August 21 to 29.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS ALWAYS PAY THEIR WAY

A good many years ago—no matter just how many—Joseph Yoch bought a lot at Laguna Beach for $600. The other day the heirs sold it for $84,000.

Many other recent sales of Laguna Beach property indicate similar increases in value.

Now, while there was some increase in these property values prior to, say, 1920; most of the increase has come within the past five or six years.

Why?

Laguna Beach had the same scenic beauty, the same fine climate, the same delightful bathing beach, the same artistic atmosphere and temperament before the year 1920 that it has since that year.

Why, then, wouldn't the Yoch lot have sold eight or ten years ago for $84,000? It would not then have brought half, probably not a third of $84,000.

Why?

Because bonds had not been voted for the Coast highway, bonds had not been voted for sewers, bonds had not been voted for new schools, bonds had not been voted for an adequate supply of pure water.

Before these bonds were voted, Joseph Yoch's lot was on the assessment roll for, maybe $5,000—going back to the beginning it was assessed for not more than $100 or $200. Now it will go on Jim Sleeper's books at one-third of $84,000—that is, its owner will pay taxes on about $28,000.

Are the bonds voted by Laguna Beach for public improvements paying their way?

They certainly are.

And so are the bonds voted seven years ago for harbor improvement at Newport Bay paying their way. Although little more than pleasure boat facilities have yet been provided by the harbor, this, together with the prospect of commercial shipping, the demonstration of the fact that it can be developed, the determination that it shall be developed, has increased assessment values in the harbor district alone enough to more than meet the payments of interest and principal on the first issue of harbor bonds.

This is not theory or estimate. It is fact—fact that can be ascertained by the examination of the books of the assessor's office, of the tax collector's office, of the auditor's office and of the treasurer's office.

And so it will be when additional bonds are issued for further harbor improvement at the commands of the people at the polls on the tenth day of June.

NEW LABOR IDEAL

The American Federation of Labor declared last year that the measure of rightful compensation for workers depended on their production.

"Thus," says Julius S. Barnes of New York, addressing the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, "was abandoned the old theory of a 'living wage' and the issue squarely joined with the European labor concept that the worker's daily performance must be restricted so that more days' wages must be paid to accomplish a given result."

He refers to the recent visit of representatives from British industries, who were amazed at the American workers' high standard of living and their status as property-owners. The visitors concluded that this prosperity arose from the high productivity of our labor, due equally to its own exertion and the effective equipment and working conditions furnished by employers.

So an old nation passes and a new one takes its place. Recently the talk was of what a workman needed to live on. The wage was the thing; production was ignored. That was a pessimistic ideal. The new view of industry is that it is to the interest of workmen, as of their employers, to produce all they can without over-exertion, because increase production enables employers to pay them better wages, and at the same time makes their products cheaper and enables them to possess more of what they make.

It is by increased production that society advances materially, and the manual workers advance along with the rest.

It is right that they should insist on their proper share of the increased production. Capital, when wise, makes it unnecessary for workmen to fight for their share. For enlightened capitalists know that good wages produce general prosperity.

The ideal for labor today is large producing power and large spending power, both of which benefit the "capitalist class" as well as the "laboring class."

AN ANCIENT ARCTIC TRAIL

While others are looking for a new land in the Arctic region, an expedition sent out by the bureau of ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution is heading for Alaska, under the leadership of Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, to try to find the route by which primitive man first found his way to the American continent.

Dr. Hrdlicka's method will be to follow up clues of pottery fragments, stone implements and bones and bits of worked ivory which Eskimos and prospectors have picked up from time to time in the far north-west.

The theory is that small groups of human beings wandered across the ice fields through periods of perhaps thousands of years. The expedition does not expect to find any ancient sites of magnitude at the top of the continent, but it does anticipate a good deal of smaller material, equally precious to science.

There is romance in the fact that two types of exploration, so different, yet both aimed at the advancement of human knowledge and power, should be carried in the same season in the same comparatively unfamiliar region.

BEAUTIFYING SCHOOL YARDS

Perhaps the first use of the school yard is to provide adequate play space for the pupils. But beauty should not suffer for utility's sake. A few flower beds and some real shade trees are as important as a baseball diamond. They are as important to the rural school as to the city school.

"There's no use trying to grow grass or flowers near the schoolhouse," some mourners complain, "because the children simply swarm all over them and kill everything."

This need not be so. Garden and playground might be kept separate. A well-functioning educational institution is able to interest the pupils in the school yard as well as in the school textbooks. Lessons in co-operation, in gardening, in neatness, in respect for growing things, could very well be taught by means of pride in the looks of the school yard.

In Orange county we have some outstanding examples in both rural and city districts of school yards that have been beautified as well as of school yards that have not been beautified. In this country, where one receives a ready response to efforts to grow grass, flowers and trees, there seems to be little excuse for ugly school yards.

Everybody Wins

San Diego Sun

It's a pretty good bargain where everybody comes out ahead.

Bolled down, the British strike settlement would seem that kind of a bargain.

First, the government won its point, that it could not permit any suggestion of outside pressure or threat, however veiled, to influence its decisions, because to do so would mean the abdication of democratic majority rule.

Second, labor scored its point, that it stands solid behind the principle of a decent standard of living as the minimum below which no British laborer will work, and that a reduction of wages is not the cure-all for ailing industries.

And, third, the mine owners were granted a temporary continuation of the government subsidy and a conditional revision of wages if found absolutely necessary.

Another healthy sign is that all three parties to the dispute appear to have made some concessions in the general interest of peace.

The government agreed to continue the subsidy pending a settlement; the miners agreed to a bipartisan wage board to consider the question of a possible new wage scale, and the owners agreed to a reorganization of the industry along the drastic lines suggested by both the miners and the royal coal commission.

A peace for which all concerned made some sacrifice, yet by virtue of which all stood to gain some approximate equal advantage, stands a good chance of lasting.

Anyhow, here's hoping.

Peril of Huge Armaments

Passado Star-News

Making due allowance for alarmist exaggerations of European armaments, it seems, from authentic information, that there is urgent need of practical limitation of land armaments there. The usual explanation of the large military forces maintained is, on the part of each nation, that large armaments are required for defensive purposes. But the warning is being raised that this feverish increase of armed forces, even though done in good faith for defense, is very dangerous to the peace of Europe.

While the arms conference in Washington concerned itself with limitation of naval forces, and did not touch upon land armaments, yet the time is at hand, it would seem, to urge reduction of land armaments and air forces, as well as sea power. If warfare is to be abolished, it must be attacked all along the line—by sea, on land and in the air. The United States stands ready to co-operate wholeheartedly with the rest of the world in feasible and acceptable movements for concerted reduction of armaments. Should it fall to the prerogative of President Coolidge to summon another international conference on disarmament, he doubtless would include limitation of land and air armaments in the agenda of subjects to be considered. The world may as well prepare itself to disarm itself, all along the line, if peace is to be maintained.

Japan and America

St. Paul Pioneer-Press

Not so much is heard now as formerly about the sinister designs of Japan upon this republic, but a recent statement of Japanese foreign trade is nevertheless illuminating. In 1925 the United States bought 98 per cent of Japan's export of raw silk and paid nearly half a billion dollars in exchange. We also took 80 per cent of her export of grass roots, 45 per cent of her camphor, 51 per cent of her brushes, 38 per cent of her pottery and 30 per cent of her toys. This country on the other side of the account, furnished Japan with 88 per cent of the automobiles she bought in 1925, 84 per cent of her lumber, 70 per cent of her building construction material, 50 per cent of her petroleum products, 50 per cent of her machinery, 54 per cent of her leather and 40 per cent of her wheat. In other words, the soundness of Japan's economic structure demands a continuous and harmonious trade with the United States. There is not the slightest reason to feel alarm over the future relations of the United States and Japan, but any skeptical realists who remain unconvinced might reflect on that balance sheet. Even those who believe the worst about their neighbors must bow to the logic of such exceedingly cold figures.

SCORE ON YOUNGSTER'S HEALTH HABITS
"Check up on your child's health habits," urges the home economics department at Cornell. Good habits established in childhood prepare the way for strong and healthy adults. The college has a score card listing the more important health habits so that parents and even the children themselves can tell whether they are heading in the right direction.

First on the score card comes sleep. The child who sleeps eleven hours each night is given fifteen points, while ten hours' sleep means ten points, and lying down for fifteen or thirty minutes each day also increases the score by ten.

The habit of cleanliness is encouraged by ten points awarded for two full baths a week, while only one bath cuts the number to five. Brushing the teeth night and morning is considered as important as two baths a week, and washing the hands before meals counts five.

Play out of doors every day is necessary for the growing child, so for one hour in the open the specialist gives ten points credit. Regular meals, drinking a glass of water before breakfast, and having a clean handkerchief every day gives five points apiece, bringing the possible total score to 100 points.

Certain deductions are made on the score card for undesirable habits. For neglecting to cover the mouth when sneezing or coughing, and for not using a clean drinking cup, ten points each are subtracted from the total score. The same amount is deducted for hurrying through meals, for going without meals, or for eating sweets between meals.

By scoring the child or letting him score himself once a month, it has been found that he usually becomes so interested in keeping his rating high that the good habits become firmly established and continue even after the scoring stops.

His Day!

Memorial Day

In Flanders fields the poppies grow between the crosses, row on row—

And in countless green hillsides of America today, roses and peonies, hawthorn and lily, are wind blown as they mantle the graves of our dead—the graves of our soldier dead and the graves of our civilian dead—just those we loved a little while and lost.

"In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below."

Strangely enough, the least known of any line in this best known of all Memorial Day poems, is the line of hope buried therein—

"The larks, still bravely singing, fly—"
Not Death itself can still life, says the poem.

Not even green graves where sleep those loved by us who bear them blossoms of memory, can choke the singing something within each and every one of us, which reaches out for life and more life abundant.

The dead would wish it so. Memories and love for them, yes. Blossoms a bloom in the heart for them each day, even as they bloom upon their graves this Memorial Day. But no dirge. No cloud upon the days.

Just "a carrying on" they ask of us. Our home dead ask for a "carrying on" of living, even though living without the beacon light of love seems an empty thing.

Our soldier dead—those brave, gallant, laughing soldier dead of '61, of '98 and of '18, ask for a "carrying on," of no compromise with the foe when right is right—

"Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high!"

Memorial Day is a day for the living as well as the dead. A day of challenge to "take up the torch and hold it high"—the torch of peace and eternal peace if these, our soldier dead, shall sleep where poppies grow in Flanders fields.

Worth While Verse

WE'VE BUT TO THINK

Blue or gray or khaki, mate. The cause the same in all.
In sixty-one; in ninety-eight; in seventeen, the call
Was for the men of heart and soul; of strength and courage strong.
Who fought with freedom as the goal that carried them along.

We echo back to other years and pay the tribute due.
A feeling takes the place of cheers for men who fought on through.
In mem'ry do we stop and pause. Our heads are sorrow bowed,
Real men upheld a worthy cause, and made a nation proud.

That inner aching lives today. That heart-bruise, ne'er to heal,
Is of the sort one cannot say—but just knows how to feel.
We've but to think what might have been. Then does the throb increase
For blue and gray and khaki kin who fought—and died for peace.

Origin of Memorial Day

The Memorial Day idea was born in a stately old Colonial mansion of Columbus, Georgia, the home of Mrs. John Tyler, on April 26, 1866.

The wounds of the Civil war were fresh in the land. Aching hearts were stealing to cemeteries to bedeck the graves of soldier sons and husbands who had died fighting for the blue or the gray.

Thousands of others sought graves of those called "missing" and longed for even a grave to call their own.

It was then that Mrs. Tyler called together the women of her town and organized a Ladies' Memorial association. The women went from Mrs. Tyler's home to Linwood cemetery in Columbus, where formal Memorial day exercises were held, and the women solemnly pledged to carry on the sweet task of decorating the graves of the soldier dead on the same day each year.

Within a very few years the idea had swept the nation until Memorial day became a legal holiday so decreed by congress. The date, however, is optional with the states themselves. Several southern states adhere to the original date of April 26. But most of the states celebrate Memorial day on May 30, when flowers are in bloom for decorating the graves.

General John A. Logan, of Civil war fame, is credited with the first general proclamation setting aside one Memorial day each year as a day of tribute.

In 1868, when Logan was commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., town story has it that his wife returned from a southern visit and told him the grave of each Confederate soldier at Petersburg was decorated with a wreath and a Confederate flag.

It was then that "Black Eagle" Logan issued an order from G. A. R. headquarters making Memorial day a northern as well as a southern custom.

A California Museum

Oakland Tribune.

News that California is to welcome its opportunity to establish at the historic Sutter's Fort in Sacramento a permanent museum devoted to housing the relics of the period 1839-1869 will be received with pleasure by all of the residents of the state. For California owes it to herself and the nation to preserve the memories of those eventful days which saw the coming here of men from every state and many nations.

Here we know something of the romance of those days preceding the discovery of the empire which was Captain Sutter's, and the life which changed so abruptly when Marshall found gold. In all parts of the country the story of that rush of adventurous men across the plains and around the Horn is regarded with a particular fondness.

Under an act passed by the last legislature and signed by Governor Richardson, the Sutter's Fort Historical Museum was created. To-day it is announced that Harry C. Peterson, who has contributed many historical articles to The Tribune, has been named curator. Available is $10,000 for the purpose of making a reorganization of the exhibits at the fort and taking proper care of them. The museum, then, is to become a fact and there comes to the people of California an opportunity to help make it a fine and comprehensive one which will speak eloquently of the mining days and the men and women who lived here just before and after '49.

Before long it will be too late. Now is the time to get together all the available early relics of the Days of Forty-Nine as the property of the state, and give them proper housing and display. Curator Peterson, who has given years of study to that period of California history, may be counted upon, with popular co-operation, to make that museum an outstanding one in America and one of which the state may be proud. It will be typically Californian and its cause will appeal the length and breadth of the state.

The Very Idea!

FACIAL EXPRESSION

Consider your face, and the things folk can trace through expression you show day by day. Let's turn thumbs down on the ones who just frown. No sense in its bein' that way.

Why not realize that a couple of eyes, and a mouth can be used to spread cheer? By hook, or by crook, you can put on the look that will make people glad you are here.

A scowl's out of joint, and by straining a point, any person can switch to a grin. If you're not of that sort, aw, come on, be a sport. Right now's a good time to begin.

Let eyes twinkle bright. There you are, now—that's right. Say, isn't it easy to do? The fellow worth while is the man who can smile, and let cheerful sunshine seep through.

Judging from static, radio music is one of the things that DOESN'T come out of a clear sky.

Once there was a bashful fella who reminded his girl of Venus. She didn't have any arms, either.

No one minds a person with a mind that minds its own business.

The reason so many people never get there is because "there" is a place they always wish they were, no matter where they are.

A wife can usually tell a husband where he is going to say he has been—and it isn't because she knows where he was.

"I'll trim up last year's hat," said moon,
"And be that much ahead."
"But, after while, she changed her mind,
And dad was trimmed instead.

The man who doesn't know where he is going, but is on his way, is the fella who is just learning to drive a machine.

We don't need to worry, any more, about that famous riddle: "Why does a chicken cross the street?" because, in these days of autos, it doesn't live.

The only way the summer is short is in connection with skirts and hosiery.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By Edson R. Walte, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

Harry A. Stroud, president of the News Writers of Oklahoma, says:

THAT the news writer is the stage hand who pulls aside the curtain in order that the masses may see what a few are doing.

THAT no civic club, chamber of commerce or any other worth-while organization could function at its best without the hearty co-operation of the newspaper and the man who writes the news.

THAT a public gathering the news writer is the most important guest because he is seeing for thousands of people who are not in attendance.

THAT the news writer is condemned, sometimes fired, if he makes a mistake, but day in and day out he is a friend to public men and officials, few of whom ever realize the important role he plays or gives him a word of thanks.

THAT the news writer usually has one of the broadest viewpoints of any man in town, because he has developed his power of observation to where he can see both sides from an unprejudiced viewpoint.

The news writer can do more for your city than your banker, your lawyers or your physicians and his services costs the community nothing. And remember that appreciation is so seldom shown the news writer that a word of encouragement or appreciation can buy more publicity than a dollar substituted for that word.
